With Return of Wilson Proposals for League Taking Definite Form

United States, England and France Have Already Outlined Plans Which Will Be Considered by President.

VERSAILLES PROBABLE SEAT FOR THE LEAGUE

Public Statement Showing Progress Made and Authorized by Governments Concerned Expected Soon.

Paris, January 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The return to Paris of President Wilson, the arrival of Lord Robert Cecil, the special delegate of the British government on the league of nations, and the presence here of Leon Bourgeois, the French representative on the same subject, marked the inauguration of exchanges on the definite terms by which the league is to be constituted.

Already considerable progress has been made on the various tentative proposals put forward, but in the recent absence of the president these have not taken definite form, as it is recognized that he personally will take a leading part in the final formulation of the plan. Meanwhile, however, the various governments chiefly interested are presenting outlines in quite definite form.

Two British Plans Presented.

Two British plans of this tentative nature have been presented—one by Lord Robert Cecil, the other by Lieutenant General J. C. Smuts, of the war cabinet. The French plan as formulated by M. Bourgeois has also been set forth, and these are being compared by the American specialists who are preparing the groundwork for President Wilson.

Lord Lobert Cecil's plan outlines a broad and comprehensive organization of the league of nations, but thus far it is in the general terms and has not yet been reduced to definite terms of enactment, as it would appear in a treaty.

General Smuts' plan is along similar lines, but more general, and is mainly a thesis on the advantages of such a league of nations. General Smuts was former minister of defense of the Union of South Africa and he will come here with the British prime minister, David Lloyd-George.

Both of these plans are receiving careful study by the American authorities and, it is declared, both are regarded in a most favorable light, though it still remains to reduce the general principles to concrete terms.

M. Bourgeois' plan, embodying the French point of view, while general, also embraces a number of specific details, including compulsory arbitration, restriction of excessive armament and international tribunal and a series of sanctions or penalties for enforcing observance of the league's decisions. These sanctions include various diplomatic, judicial and economic measures, whereby the united states may enforce their decrees.

Would Avoid Balance of Power.

The American viewpoint, as it is now being formulated by the specialists as the groundwork for the president, seeks to reach an accord on fundamentals on which all agree, and present them in simple working form. One of the chief of these fundamentals is the formation of a league which will embrace all the nations of the world, but not one which will establish any balance of power among a group of nations.

Also care is being taken that the influence of the various nations in the league would be in accordance with their size and importance, so that the great powers and the small powers would have voices according to their standing.

Another feature especially concerning small undeveloped nations is to be established, according to the American plan—a system of in-

SPARTACANS LEAD RIOT OF ANARCHY IN HUN CAPITAL

Thousands of Armed Workmen Crowd Streets While Machine Guns Are Used All Over City.

RADICAL SOCIALISTS CALL GENERAL STRIKE

"Red" Leaders From Russia Aiding Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg in Fomenting Bolshevism.

Paris, January 7.—During the fighting between the Spartacans and the government supporters in Berlin on Monday, according to dispatches received here, the Spartacans entered the chancellor's palace, from which they opened fire on the building of The Vorwaerts. Eichhorn, the Spartacan police chief, is reported to be fortified in the castle.

Serious fighting occurred in Wilhelmstrasse and a large number of Spartacans are reported to have been killed.

The independent socialists have joined the Spartacans and proclaimed a general strike in Berlin. The majority socialists and democrats are supporting the government.

BERLIN IN STATE OF COMPLETE ANARCHY.

Copenhagen, January 7.—Berlin is in a state of complete anarchy and civil war has begun there, according to the Munich correspondent of The Politiken. His information, he says, is based on telegraphic messages from the German capital.

All the banks are barricaded and a great number of the public buildings are in the hands of the Spartacan, or extreme radical group.

Thousands of armed workmen of the Spartacus faction, the correspondent reports, are crowding the streets and at several points firing has begun. The sound of machine gunfire could be heard from all parts of Berlin.

The message reported the intention of the government to make an effort to storm the building of the police guards later in the day and take possession of all the machine guns and cannon there.

Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Spartacan leader, has been seen here and there about the city, organizing his troops for the final fight, which, the correspondent says, is expected to begin very soon.

Hundreds of persons are reported fleeing the city.

GOVERNMENT READY TO REPEL ATTACK.

Berlin, Monday, January 6.—(Afternoon.)—(By the Associated Press.) A government official has informed the correspondent that the cabinet has rallied all agencies to the support of law and order and defense of the government.

"If the Spartacans attack us," said the official, "they will find us prepared. We have all the troops needed to assert our authority. Naturally we are anxious to avoid a conflict, but if it comes it will not be of our choosing."

The correspondent has been informed in competent quarters that the government is hurriedly mobilizing all available defensive forces. The Spartacans also are arming and making the royal stables their headquarters. A spacious apartment in the former chancellor's palace has been equipped as a Red Cross room.

RAIL SECRETARY IN THE CABINET, EXECUTIVES' PLAN

Will Recommend to Congress System of Unified Private Management With Strong Public Control.

TRADE COMMISSION AS COURT FOR RATES

Return of Railroads to Private Ownership Within Reasonable Period Is Urged by the Commerce Board.

Washington, January 7.—Railroad executives have decided to recommend to congress a system of unified private management of rail lines with strong public control exercised by a secretary of transportation in the president's cabinet, and a reorganized interstate commerce commission with regional divisions acting as a court of last resort in rate disputes.

This became known here today coincidental with the disclosure of the interstate commerce commission's attitude that railroads should be returned to private management within a "reasonable period" to allow for preparations and readjustments and under "broadened, extended and aamplified governmental regulation."

"The commission's announcement was made by Commissioner Edgar E. Clark, testifying at the senate interestate commerce committee's hearing on proposed railroad legislation, to which the railway executives' proposed plan will be presented tomorrow or Thursday. The commission opposed indefinite continuance of government ownership or operation of railroads at this time, and outlined a comprehensive plan for legislation which would permit elimination of unnecessary competition, pooling of facilities, government prescription of maximum and minimum rates and standards of service, government direction of railroad extensions and financing, and direct co-operation between federal and state regulatory bodies. Commissioner Woolley dissented in part, advocating Director General McAdoo's proposal that government control be extended for five years to provide a test period.

Plans Are Similar.

The interstate commerce commission's suggestions were the first alternatives to Mr. McAdoo's extension plan so far received by the senate committee. Most of the commission's suggestions are understood to be embodied in the railroad executives' plan, which also proposes permanent retention of a greater part of the reforms effected by the railroad administration.

The interstate commerce commission's statement to the senate committee referred repeatedly to "a federal body" to exercise public control over railroads, but did not specify whether this was to be the commission itself or some other agency. The plan of the railroad executives, on the other hand, proposes to give to the secretary of transportation broad powers to coordinate and unify rail facilities whenever demanded by the public interests; to distribute traffic over various lines for the purpose of relieving congestion and to require the joint use of terminals.

To co-ordinate the agencies of government control the railrpad executives propose to transfer to the department of transportation the executive and administrative functions now held by the interstate commerce commission. The commission would remain the court of last resort as to reasonableness and adequacy of freight and passenger rates, but the responsibility for rate regulation would be divided between the secretary of transportation, the commission and new regional commissions, representing groups of states, reporting their findings to the commission at Washington.

Secretary to Review Rates.

The proposal of the railroad leaders is that rates filed by them with the government shall be reviewed by the secretary of transportation, who may approve or disapprove them or refer them to the commission. Any rates made the subject of complaint by the public could be brought before the commission for review, regardless of the cabinet officer's action. The period for which rates might be suspended pending investigation would be reduced from ten months, as at present, to two months.

The railroad men's attitude is that the commerce commission's efficiency would be increased through relieving it of administrative detail, and the turning over to regional commissioners of much routine involved in hearing local rate cases.

To make possible consolidation of weak railroads with strong lines, joint use of cars and facilities, inter-company agreements as to rates and practices, the rail executives would amend existing laws forbidding these practices, and legalize them under supervision of the secretary of transportation. "REDS" DEFENDED BY LA FOLLETTE

Bolsheviki Reliable, He Declares, in Criticising Sending of American Troops to Russia.

Washington, January 7.—Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, republican, speaking today in the senate, criticised the sending of American troops to Russia and denied that the soviet government of Russia is pro-German. He said a mass of information with documents attesting the reliability of the Bolsheviki had been brought out of Russia last spring and repeated efforts to present them to the American government have been without success.

"I don't know how other senators feel," Senator La Follette declared, "but I would be false to the people in my state if I did not exhaust every means within my power to ascertain definitely and ultimately what right there is that hundreds of men from Wisconsin have been sent upon and continued on such an enterprise."

Senator La Follette was interrupted by Senator Kenyon, republican, of Iowa, who asked what had become of the resolution introduced by Senator Johnson, of California, asking the state department for information relative to the status of relations between this government and Russia.

To Protect Supplies.

Senator Swanson, democrat, of Virginia, a member of the foreign relations committee, interrupted to reply that the resolution was to have been considered by the committee tomorrow, but that the meeting was postponed as many senators will be absent, attending the funeral of Roosevelt.

The Virginia senator said that from information in his possession, allied troops, including about 2,500 Americans, were sent to Russia to protect supplies and prevent Germany from establishing a submarine base in the vicinity of Archangel.

Senator La Follette said that while this might explain the sending of troops into Russia, he had information in his possession which denied that the Russian soviet government was pro-German.

"I think the proof is overwhelming, he continued. "If it ever is permitted to come before the American people, that the soviet government exerted itself to enlist the sympathies and support of the United States government to the end that it might be strong enough to resist the German government."

An official statement from the administration as to the right and reason for presence of American troops in Russia was demanded by Senator La Follette, who declared that, whether the American government approves or disappproves of Bolshevik rule, that fact establishes no right for hostility with Russian forces without a declaration of war.

Claims Truth Censored.

"Whatever comes to the American people through censored channels of the press regarding the soviet government," Senator La Follette said, "ought to be subjected to careful study and reflection before being taken as stating the whole truth.

"The great organized wealth of all the established governments of the world fear above all things on earth the principles attempted to

"British Made Fun of Us and Said We Could Not Fight, But We Showed Them at St. Quentin," Says Thomas Jones, of Murray County.

Back from scenes of battle horror in Europe, where American blood was freely shed and American lives freely given in the last great effort that smashed the power of the Huns and brought about the armistice, Georgia boys, wounded in action, and now at McPherson for treatment, told yesterday of their own part in battle and of how their comrades—men from this state—faced and met death.

A Chester Boy.

Among the first to arrive at the fort this week was Beaufort Sawyer, of Chester, Ga., who went through the struggle without a scratch, but after it was all over developed rheumatism and was sent to the states. Sawyer says that he was marching a few feet away from the first two men who were killed out of his division and that the bullet took a notch out of his hat. The last two men that were killed were Paul Hearn, of Macon, and Frank Irwin, of Hawkinsville.

Private B. H. Tucker, of Elberton, Ga., a grandson of M. A. Dobbs, of Atlanta, and nephew of S. C. Dobbs, of Atlanta, arrived with the batch of men. He is a member of the One Hundred and Eighteenth infantry and was wounded at St. Quentin during the struggle that broke the Hindenburg line. He was eeducated at Young Harris college and volunteered soon after war was declared by the United States.

Thomas Jones, of Murray county, whom the British nicknamed "Boy Scout," because he is only 6 feet high and weighs 206 pounds, arrived yesterday. He says he is a member of the Thirtieth division and says he spent his twentieth birthday on German territory with plenty of fireworks to celebrate with, as his division helped to break the German line at St. Quentin.

"The British made fun of us and said we could not fight," said

Atlanta to Honor Heroes Who Made Great Sacrifice

One hundred of Atlanta's patriotic citizens, fifty men, fifty women, will organize for the purpose of building a suitable monument to the men of Atlanta and Fulton county, who have died in the service of their country in the war.

This was decided at a meeting of a memorial committee held at the Capital City club Tuesday over which Mrs. John Marshall Slaton presided.

Mrs. Slaton stated that the purpose of the meeting was to organize forces for the collection of funds and the establishment of a monument, into the interest of which it was expected to draw every man, woman and child in the city and county. Mayor Key was present at the meeting and expressed his interest in the movement and the hope that it would take not only permanent but a substantial and dignified form worthy of the men who had given up their lives in the army and navy.

There was informal discussions

MORE STATES VOTE FOR DRY MEASURE

The Federal Prohibition Amendment Ratified by Oklahoma, Ohio and Colorado—Voted by Idaho Lower House.

Chicago, January 7.—Three more states today ratified the proposed prohibition amendment, making a total of nineteen states that have indorsed the proposal of congress. The house of the Idaho legislature voted today for the amendment, but the senate tabled the proposal, delaying action. The act needs to be passed by seventeen more states.

While the proposed addition to the basic law was ratified today by the legislatures of Ohio, Colorado and Oklahoma, representatives of the distillery companies of the country met in Chicago and decided to oppose both the amendment and the war prohibition law, which is to go into effect on July 1 by every legal means possible.

The states which have ratified the prohibition amendment are Kentucky, Virginia, Mississippi, South Carolina, North Dakota, Maryland, Montana, Arizona, Delaware, Texas, South Dakota, Massachusetts, Georgia, Louisiana, Florida Michigan, Ohio, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Liquor Interests Declare War.

Resolutions adopted by distillers today declared that the time had come for members of the industry to make "a most determined resistance to such revolutionary methods" referring to the war prohibition law and the proposed federal constitutional amendment. Action was taken to vest liquor's fight in a committee and Levy Mayer, of Chicago, was appointed chief counsel.

It is said to be the plan to allow the government to make the first move by charging a violation after July 1 and on the prosecution thereof the liquor interest will wage its fight.

The resolutions adopted today stated that there were 500 distilleries in the country with an aggregate investment of at least $1,000,000,000; that the industry actually antedated the constitution adopted in 1789, and that the business "has heretofore been recognized, encouraged and protected by the United States government itself."

It was also stated that there was on hand about 150,000,000 gallons of whisky and alcohol of a total value of about $750,000,000 and that federal and state taxes of at least $5,000,000,000 had been paid since the enactment of the internal revenue law of 1862.

Rye Urges Ratification.

Nashville, Tenn., January 7.—Governor Tom C. Rye in a message to the general assembly this afternoon called attention to the national prohibition amendment and urged that the legislature give the same its immediate consideration. The governor stated in his message that he would be proud to have the state take the step toward national prohibition during his administration.

Joint resolutions were introduced in both the senate and house providing for Tennessee's ratification of the prohibition amendment. Under the rules the resolutions go over until tomorrow, when both houses will probably vote on the question.

AS PLAIN CITIZEN, ROOSEVELT GOES TO GRAVE TODAY

Only Rites Will Be Simple Episcopal Service, Read by Rector in Little Village Church.

FEW NOTED FRIENDS INVITED TO FUNERAL

Lodge, Hughes and Taft Will Attend—Vice President Marshall Will Represent President Wilson.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., January 7.—Theodore Roosevelt will be buried here tomorrow as a plain American citizen and not as former president of the United States, in accordance with his own wish. His body will be laid at rest in a plot of his own selection in the village cemetery not far from the Sagamore hill which he loved so well.

The only funeral rites will be the simple Protestant Episcopal service. It will be read by the rector of the little country church where he had worshipped with his family. There will be none of the pomp and circumstance associated with the passing of great men, but the presence of Vice President Marshall, who will represent President Wilson; General Peyton C. March, representing the army, and Admiral C. McR. Winslow, the navy, will add to the ceremony the dignity of the nation.

Governor Alfred E. Smith and leaders of both houses of the legislature will represent New York state.

Noted Men Invited.

A few of the noted men who were Colonel Roosevelt's closest friends have been invited to the funeral. They include Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Charles Evans Hughes. Another mourner will be William H. Taft, whose friendship for Mr. Roosevelt had been re-established more than a year ago. Senator Lodge and Mr. Hughes are expected to arrive early tomorrow and will spend most of the morning with the family at Sagamore Hill.

The former president's body was placed tonight for the first time in the plain oak casket in which it will be taken tomorrow to Christ church, where the services are to be held, at 12:45 o'clock. On this casket appears only a brief inscription—the name, Theodore Roosevelt, and the dates of his birth and death.

Whether those at the church would be allowed to pass before the open casket and look for the last time upon the face of the for-

CITY OWNERSHIP PLAN FEASIBLE

By Wise Use of Sinking Fund, People of Atlanta Can Own Their Public Utilities, Says Noted Expert.

"Not only is the municipal ownership idea a feasible one, being put into successful operation in many of the cities of the United States and Canada, but it can become an accomplished fact in the city of Atlanta."

This statement was made Tuesday night by James G. Rossman, a former Atlanta boy, graduate of Georgia Tech, who at one time was vice president of the Georgia Railway and Electric company, assisting that company in the working out of the problems that faced it in effecting the consolidation of the street railways and the power companies of this city, and acting as consulting engineer in the building of the hydro-electric plants now owned and operated by the Georgia Railway and Power company.

Mr. Rossman was also the builder of the famous Ponce de Leon park, which several years ago was known as one of the finest amusement parks in the south.

Engineering Authority.

Since leaving Atlanta Mr. Rossman has been associated with various electric and public utility enterprises in all parts of the United States and in Canada, and has gained the reputation of being one of the highest engineering authorities in the country. The big municipal plant at Winnipeg, Canada, which was built by the city to compete with a local power company, was erected in record time by Mr. Rossman, who was chosen as the builder of the plant over seventy-six engineers from all parts of the world. He was also associated with the famous plants owned by the city of Seattle, Wash., and has been employed as consulting engineer by many cities and utility corporations of the country.

Mr. Rossman stopped over in Atlanta for the day en route to Mississippi, where he goes to visit his Pittsburg Firemen Remove Eight Bodies and Report That Many Others Are Still in Burning Debris.

DAMAGE IS ESTIMATED AT MILLION DOLLARS

Explosion Blew Many Into Street—Fire, Which Threatened to Become Serious, Followed Crash.

Pittsburg, January 7.—Between fifteen and twenty persons, mostly women and girls, were killed and more than a score others injured here late today, when a terrific explosion wrecked a film exchange building at 804 Penn avenue, in the downtown section of the city. Eight bodies have been recovered from the ruins, and firemen, working on the interior of the structure, report that many other bodies are buried under wreckage.

All the fire apparatus has been summoned and ambulances from every hospital. A serious fire threatens the downtown section and has already spread through the block to Liberty avenue.

The building in which the explosion occurred is a six-story structure, and many of those injured received their hurts by jumping from the upper floors. Persons in the vicinity when the explosion shook the district say that prior to the upheaval a dense cloud of black smoke poured from the lower floor. Then came the terrific report, shattering windows and casting many persons on the interior of the structure to the street.

Many firemen were injured, two when an extension ladder collapsed and others by flying glass and falling wreckage. Hospitals throughout the city are receiving wounded, whil ebodies are being removed to the morgue. One report circulated is that firemen have located the bodies of eight young girls on the third floor, huddled together. They are supposed to have died of suffocation.

William Bennett, chief of the Pittsburg fire department, went through the ruined structure tonight and he estimated the total loss at $1,000,000.

At this hour scores of firemen are working feverishly on the wreckage in an effort to dig out the bodies of victims caught under falling debris.

At midnight only eight bodies had been removed from the wreckage. One girl succumbed in a hospital, making the known dead at that hour nine.

COL. R. J. LOWRY GROWING WEAKER; RELATIVES WIRED

Relatives of Colonel Robert J. Lowry, prominent Atlantan and one of the leading bankers of the south, who has been ill at his apartment at the Majestic hotel for the last several days, were wired early Tuesday night to hasten to his bedside, as physicians believed that the end would probably come before morning.

The condition of Colonel Lowry, who is 79 years old, has been regarded as critical for the last three days. His age has told against him in his fight for life. Early this morning he was steadily growing weaker.

DON'T THROW AWAY YOUR OLD SHOES

Make Them Wear Like New—As Did This Canadian Officer

A Canadian army officer, William Pemberton, of the famous Princess Pat Regiment, told of the extraordinary wear given him by a pair of army boots twice repaired with Neolin Soles.

"Six months of trench warfare under destructive conditions put the first pair of Neolin Soles out of business," said Lieutenant Pemberton, "but ordinary soles would have gone to pieces in much less time."

Don't throw away shoes that can be repaired. Have them re-bottomed with tough, durable Neolin Soles. Any cobbler or repairman will do the work for you. The price is no more than for soles that give less wear. Remember—Neolin Soles are created by science to be what soles should be. They are flexible and waterproof as well as durable. They come on new shoes of all styles. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

PRESIDENT BACK IN PARIS AGAIN

Returns From Trip to Italy, Accompanied by Wife and Miss Margaret Wilson.

Paris, January 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—President Wilson has completed his swing through England and Italy, returning to Paris at 10 o'clock this morning. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson.

The president is ready for the first gathering of the premiers and statesmen of the entente powers, and the informal conferences will begin on Thursday or Friday.

The first conferences will be in the nature of informal exchanges of views by the various groups having common interests. These will then be condensed and reduced to memoranda, which the interested nations will sign and pass to the peace conference, to be incorporated, if satisfactory, in the final terms.

It is believed that by this method the great powers can avoid calling in the representatives of neutral states and nominal belligerents when their interests are discussed.

Under the present scheme the representatives of neutral states and the smaller belligerents will first meet the representatives of the powers with whom they have questions pending, with the object of settling them, while the others will be free to confer with those with whom they have interests. These conferences will concern principally local questions. It will be a process of elimination which is expected to reduce greatly detailed work of the general conference.

GEORGIA BOYS TELL HOW COMRADES DIED

Jones, "but we showed them at St. Quentin, and I wish you could read what old Brother Haig said about us." He pulled a clipping from an English newspaper from his pocket which contained words of commendation from General Haig to the Forty-second division.

One of the most dramatic of all the stories told was that of J. T. Williams, of Macon, a member of the 151st machine gun battery, made up of Georgia men, who were trained at Camp Wheeler.

Capture of Mt. Sec.

"Our battalion was among the first to advance at Chateau Thierry," said Williams, "and we helped take Hill 212 and the town of Surgis. We had a great time helping to round up the 30,000 prisoners. Gee, but that was a great day for the Rainbow fellows. At Mt. Sec we lost another one of our men, the bravest fellow that ever wore a suit of khaki. I am speaking of Sergeant St. Bernard Green, of Macon, who recaptured his machine gun from the Germans.

"The day before Bernard was killed a party of Germans raided our positions and captured the first row of machine guns for several hundred yards, forcing us to retire. Bernard told us he was going to recapture his gun if he died in the effort, so he stole away without permission and surprised the four German gunners, who were manipulating the gun, shot two of them down and when the third tried to escape by running he outran him and whipped his pistol from his pocket, and blew his brains out. The fourth German was captured by Gus Williamson, of Macon, who followed Green.

"Green left us at Newport, as we were going over, and went back to Macon and married a Macon girl. He came back to us happy as a king, but we couldn't smile with him for we knew that a telegram was waiting in the office, telling him that his bride had died since he left her in Macon. After he read the message he never valued his life one moment, and told us as we were crossing over that he was going to stop the first German bullet which was aimed at a Georgia man. He fought with reckless courage and placed himself in the most dangerous places, and a shrapnel got him at last, but not before he had received a D. M. C. for the recapture of his gun.

Lieutenant Lore.

"We were in the front line at St. Mihiel and it was here that we lost our lieutenant, who was Robert Lore, of Macon. We had stopped and he was standing in front of our company and had just given the order 'dig in' when a bomb got him. We carried out his order, but we felt just like fellows who are digging graves for their best friend, for Lore was loved by us all.

"In the St. Mihiel drive our division captured a German university, which was full of students of art still at work showing how completely we surprised them.

"Captain Peacock, of Macon, had charge of our company and he received his promotion to major while we were on the St. Mihiel front. He cried like a child when he left us and I think most of us cried, too, for he is a great fellow and we were sorry to part with him.

"I was gassed at St. Mihiel and they sent me to the hospital and would not let me go back to the front until one day a lieutenant from Atlanta came into the ward and I made an appeal to him and through him got permission to join my company in time to get into the Argonne fight.

"A funny thing happened while we were on the Alsace front. Harry Tucker, of Macon, always had said that a German bullet would never make him duck. He said he was going to stand straight like a soldier till they struck him to the ground. Well, one day while we were crossing a field on the Alsace front a German bullet pierced the shirt of the unbending Harry and tore the back part of it off him. From that day Harry was willing to duck when he heard the familiar z-zziz of a German bullet.

"Private Otis Knight, another Macon boy, who was a member of my company, was killed at Chateau Thierry. He was advancing with a machine gun on his shoulder when a shrapnel exploded and got him. It was the same shrapnel that got Sergeant Green.

In a Shell Hole.

"Jake Hollis, of Forsyth, got his ear blown off at Chateau Thierry, and we told him to leave the gun and crawl into a hole that was near by. He refused to do it, and because he was so bloody we went to him, pulled his hands from the gun, and forced him to get into the shell hole. His head kept bleeding so profusely that we begged him to go back to the rear and have it treated. After awhile he consented, but he had gone but a few steps when a shell blew him to pieces.

"We were ordered to throw our blankets away at St. Mihiel, and we never had a blanket to cover with afterwards, but had become so accustomed to the hardships when we were in northern France the winter before and marched with icicles two inches long hanging from our hats, sleeping in snow three feet deep, that we were able to stand anything.

"We reached the Argonne front four days before the armistice was signed and saw a little of the fun there. We helped take a big railroad center, but our division lost very heavily. A German 'Dud,' which is the name we gave to the German shells that are defective to the extent that they do not explode, fell within three inches of me and I was so glad that it was a 'Dud' that I raised up and yelled, 'Hurrah for the "Duds."'"

Other Georgians to arrive were: English Byrd, Ashburn; Isaac Pitts, Chester; John R. Slater, Macon; Joseph Hobby, Sylvester; Jessie Reese, Atlanta; Henry A. Johnson, Quitman; Russell Yates, Brunswick; Richard Gladdis, Dalton.

John Lamb, another Georgian, who arrived with the new men, was sent to Camp Gordon.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Simple Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—(adv.)

ROOSEVELT GOES TO GRAVE TODAY

mer president was not known here tonight. Mrs. Roosevelt was said to be undecided whether the coffin should be finally sealed before being carried into the sanctuary. Announcement may be made tomorrow morning but it appeared more probable that Mrs. Roosevelt would not make known her desire in this respect until after the service of prayer at Sagamore Hill tomorrow.

Sons Together in France.

Only the immediate family of Colenel Roosevelt will be present at the prayer service, which will be conducted by Rev. George E. Talmage, who is to officate at the church, of which he is the rector.

Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Lieutenant Kermit Roosevelt, who are with the American expeditionary forces in France, will be together while their father is being buried.

Announcement was made at Sagamore Hill tonight of the names of the immediate members of the Roosevelt family who are expected to be present tomorrow at the prayer service which will be held at the Roosevelt home prior to the services in Christ church. They are: Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Captain and Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Mrs. Richard Derby, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, the colonel's sister; Mr. and Mrs. T. Douglas Robinson, the former being the colonel's nephew; Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alsop, W. Emlen Roosevelt, a cousin of the colonel; John K. Roosevelt, also a cousin; Mr. and Mrs. E. Reeve Merritt, Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Warner, Mrs. Hilborne Roosevelt, John E. Roosevelt, Mrs. Fairman Dick, Mrs. Monroe Robinson, Mrs. Langdon Geer, Mrs. John E. Roosevelt, Mrs. James A. Roosevelt, Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt, Samuel Roosevelt and Miss Nellie Tyler.

Contingent of Rough Riders.

A contingent of Rough Riders who served under the colonel during the Spanish war are among those who will occupy places of honor at the funeral service.

Included among them are Lieutenant Colonel John C. Greenway, of Bisbee, Ariz., famous football and baseball player in his college days, who returned recently from service in France; Major Roscoe E. Channing, former Princeton tackle; Major Robert Channing, one time tennis player; Captain W. E. Dame, of Las Vegas, N. M., and Captain Arthur F. Cosby, active in the work of the military training camps association during the war.

Among the distinguished persons who besides the forty members of the congressional delegation and representatives of numerous civic, patriotic and social organizations, will be present are:

Former President William H. Taft, General Peyton C. March, representing the army; Admiral C. McR. Winslow, representing the navy; Governor Alfred E. Smith and Lieutenant Governor Harry Walker; Charles E. Hughes, United States Senator-elect Truman H. Newberry; various other members of congress, and the state legislature; George A. Glynn, chairman of the republican state committee; Police Commissioner Enright, of New York, and Colonel Arthur Wood, a former commissioner; Former United States Senator A. J. Beveridge, Gifford Pinchot and James M. Beck.

Others invited to the service include: Brigadier General and Mrs. Cornellus Vanderbilt, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Coudert, Major and Mrs. August Belmont, Otto H. Kahn, Ogden M. Reid, Frank A. Munsey, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, Owen Wister, Mr. and Mrs. William Loeb, and Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cortelyou.

Both the prayer service at Sagamore Hill and the one with limited public attendance at Christ Episcopal church will be conducted by the Rev. George E. Talmage, rector of the church. There will be no formal music at the church service and no eulogy. The ceremony will be the simple one of the Episcopal church. Dr. Talmage will recite "How Firm a Foundation," the hymn which was the colonel's favorite.

Theodore Roosevelt's own wish that he be buried with only simple ceremony will be fulfilled. There may be national memorial services at Washington or New York in the near future, but there will be no military honors paid to the dead ex-president at the funeral services here tomorrow.

Army aviators may drop flowers and wreaths at Young's Memorial cemetery just as they did today upon the Roosevelt home on Sagamore Hill. But, except for the presence of United States senators and representatives, and perhaps small committees representing the governors of New York and several other states, only the townspeople of Oyster Bay—"Teddy's" neighbors who loved him in life—the members of the Roosevelt family and a limited number of close friends will assemble in Christ church to hear read the simple Episcopal service.

mother, and when seen at his room in the Ansley hotel last night he said:

"I am sure the people of this city can own their own power plant as well as other utilities," said he, "for the plan is a perfectly feasible one. The question is one that involves at first competition, which can be brought to bear at frist as an entering wedge, by a very small plant, such as could be built at the city crematory you have here, where steam is going to waste, and by using this to compete for the centrally located business in the city within a small radius, which is known as the cream of the utility company's business.

Use of Sinking Fund.

"The plan of financing the scheme is one of a wise use of the sinking fund, which takes the place under municipal ownership of the holding companies and the pyramiding of stocks and securities under the private ownership plan. The people pay the tax, anyway you fix it, according to your new mayor, who is right in the statement that the people should own the plants after they have paid for them. You can get the credit of the city behind the proposition, and you may rest assured that there are plenty of precedents by which the whole matter can be worked out on a sound financial basis.

"The people are getting tired of the manipulation of securities by the public service corporations and are using the means of withholding favors from them by refusing to grant increased fares in order to bring them to their knees. The people of New York, where this same question is now paramount, asked why strap-hangers should be asked to put up additional tax for using the cars, while men at the head of the corporation that was crying for help were drawing fabulous salaries. When the corporations were prosperous nothing was said about a reduction of fares.

"The people of this city could make a success of the ownership of their utilities if they will but purchase them on a sound basis of valuation, and will see that they are placed in the hands of competent men. There is no doubt about this, for it is being done elsewhere, and the idea is growing with leaps and bounds over the entire country. And a proper basis of valuation can be had, too," said Mr. Rossman, "for there are all sorts of precedents over the country for that. There are two kind of valuations for corporations, the one on which money is raised, and the other which represents the actual physical value of its assets, to which a certain overhead has been added by experts.

Mentor for Key.

"Mr. Key should have a mentor, some one who knows how to take the technical showings that are made by the corporations, and the reports that are made by experts, and translate them into the everyday language that could be placed before council and whatever boards that will hear them. These boards are usually composed of laymen, who find it is difficult to decipher the complex reports and financial showings that are made by the high financiers controlling the big corporations, and need the assistance of one who can interpret them.

"The people have got to start on the idea that the street car company and other utility companies have to treat with them sooner or later, refuse to grant them favors unless they are willing to also make concessions, and let the corporations understand that they have to give the service that is demanded by the needs of the public and meet all police regulations."

Mr. Rossman made it plain that Atlanta does not depend upon hydro-electric power, or upon the buying of the plants owned by the Georgia Railway and Power company, for said he: "It is a fact that power can be generated with steam by plants set down in the coal regions that are not more than 100 miles away from Atlanta and transmitted to this city that will allow the city to compete with the private concerns using hydro-electric generating plants.

Interested in Plan.

Mr. Rossman declared himself very much interested in the plan for Atlanta to own its own plants, and said that the city could place its credit behind the scheme, borrowing money at about 4½ per cent, which would make a much larger return upon the investment. He has no doubt of the ability of the city to put the scheme over, declaring that enabling legislation has been granted to cities for the purpose of owning their own plants and financing the purchase or erection of them.

Leaving the city today for Mississippi, Mr. Rossman will spend a few days with his mother, when he returns through this city on his way north. He will be invited, it is believed, to talk with members of council upon the scheme that is now afoot here to own the electric power and street railway company. Mr. Rossman is engaged in a plan at this time by which he believes a vast amount of money can be saved the south through a better plan of baling cotton at the gins, a scheme by which greater compression will be applied to the bales, making it possible to get more of them into a car for shipment, thereby saving freight charges.

Dr. Milo Maltbie Here.

Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, a public utility expert of New York, presented himself at the offices of the state railroad commission in the capitol Tuesday morning and asked that he be given access to the records of the commission and the Georgia Railway and Power company, the Atlanta Gas Light company, to assist him in making a report to the city authorities of Atlanta in connection with the valuation of said properties, looking forward to the purchase of same by the city.

The commission informed that all public records of the commission were open to him.

Dr. Maltbie was said by publications in Atlanta newspapers to be making an investigation of the Georgia Railway and Power company, and it was thought that the expert was employed officially by the city, but this was denied last night by Mayor Key, who declares that Dr. Maltbie, being on a hunting trip near Atlanta, came into the city because of the bad weather. "There is no basis for any statement that Dr. Maltbie is employed at this time by the city of Atlanta," said Mr. Key. "He is one of the experts, however, with whom I talked when in New York and is a most capable man."

A joint resolution indorsing President Wilson's plans for a league of nations was adopted by the senate. Some opposition developed to consideration of the resolution, but it was promptly voted down and the rules were suspended, the resolution being adopted.

ZIRON Iron Tonic Proved The Right Remedy For This And Other Troubles.

"Sometime back," writes W. T. Palmer, of Soperton, Ga., "I was in a rundown state. My nerves were all torn to pieces. It was an effort for me to do my work. I did not rest well at nights. I felt tired when morning came, and didn't feel like starting the day. My skin was muddy. My appetite was poor. I felt very much in need of a tonic. I thought it was the lack of iron and decided to try Ziron, as I heard there was no better tonic made. I began taking it and can safely and gladly say it did me a world of good. Ziron is a good all-around tonic for young and old, and makes one feel that life is worth living."

Ziron is an iron tonic which gives quick, dependable strength. You need it to put rich, red, iron-medicated blood into your blood vessels, to steady your nerves, put fresh color into your cheeks and brightness in your eyes.

NEW POINT MADE IN BANNING CASE

Thousands of Citizenship Papers Void if Courts Sustain Claim Advanced by the Government.

If the point made by the United States district attorney in the hearing on habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Charles Banning, millionaire club man and manufacturer now interned at Fort Oglethorpe, that the naturalization of the petitioner was never legal because the name of the German monarch was omitted, is sustained by Judge W. T. Newman, who is hearing the case, thousands of citizenship papers, not only in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, where Banning was naturalized in 1903, but throughout the United States, must be considered void.

Although the government has always furnished certificates which must be signed by aliens taking the allegiance oath, it is only very recently that the name and full title of the rulers of the various countries were printed on these, blanks being left to be filled in with this information. The oath declares that the subject renounces and abjures all allegiance to any foreign ruler or potentate, especially that one to whom he has hitherto been subject. The name and complete title of that ruler are then required to be inserted here.

Carelessness Shown.

There has been much carelessness in many counties with regard to strict compliance with this regulation. The certificate which was signed by Banning bears simply the name, "Emperor of Germany," which the government claims makes the paper invalid. The sentence should contain the name of William Hohenzollern, with his further title, King of Prussia, the capitalist having been a resident of Prussia.

The contention was made during the argument following the presentation of this claim that practically every citizenship certificate granted since 1906 in the lower courts does not include specifically the name of the sovereign of the country from which the applicant has come. This is the first time that the legality of the omission has been brought up in the courts.

In the attempt to prove that Banning lost his citizenship rights in America by taking up a long residence in Germany, which he intended to make his home, the government produced several witnesses Tuesday afternoon who were questioned as to Banning's attitude toward his permanency in Pittsburgh, and his loyalty to the American government.

George W. Miller, superintendent of the personal tax revision board, of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, stated that in 1917 when his tax assessments were sent to Banning, the steel man appeared with counsel and asked to be relieved from this taxation since his residence was in Berlin. Mr. Miller says that he accepted this excuse and he produced the original paper whereon had been written this statement with Banning's signature. In 1918, however, upon a request to furnish returns, these taxes were paid by Banning, Mr. Miller said.

The Duquesne Club.

Another witness was Colonel Chambers McKibbin, who said he had been secretary of the Duquesne club, in Pittsburg, where Banning lived in Pittsburg for thirty years. The interned man became a resident member of the club in 1894, he stated, and was removed to the non-resident roll in 1904, when he told the secretary that he was going to Berlin to make a home for his father. He was again placed among the resident members in January, 1918, but his membership expired a short time ago, the secretary said.

C. V. Witt, who said that he had known Banning almost ever since he had come to America in 1902, told of his acquaintance with the petitioner in the Technical society of Pittsburg, which is made up of many German-Americans. In the register of the society his address was given as Berlin, but Witt denied that this indicated that Banning was making his home there, altogether. Banning had been an outspoken opponent of the military party in Germany previous to 1914, the witness said.

Testimony as to Banning's favoritism to Germany, against the allies before America entered the war, was given by Robert S. Judge, of Pittsburg, special agent for the department of justice, who assisted in the investigations which led to the arrest of Banning under the espionage act in September, 1918. He told of remarks which the millionaire is alleged to have made last year during the course of which he spoke of the German army as 'our army,' and of the American as 'theirs.'

No Disloyal Acts.

Mr. Judge admitted to Attorney R. F. Martin, of Pittsburg, who conducted the cross-examination for Banning's counsel, composed also of Congressman William Schley Howard and Attorney James A. Branch, that Banning had not been found guilty of any disloyal acts other than the statements referred to, and that he had offered to have his financial records examined.

It was learned from testimony brought out that Banning is now under indictment by a federal grand jury at Pittsburg, which allowed him to give bail of $5,000, for violation of the espionage act. It was on account of the remarks which he is claimed to have made derogatory to the part of the United States in the war that he was interned as a dangerous allen.

The treaty which has been so often referred to between Grmany and the United States with regard to the naturalization of citizens was ratified in 1868 between the North German union and the United States. Article 4 of this treaty provides that any duly naturalized North German shall lose his citizenship in America if he signifies his intention of returning to Germany to live, the same restriction to hold with an American naturalized in North Germany. It is stated that returning to the native country shall be construed as manifesting the intention to live there.

The government has completed the list of its witnesses, and the sessions which will be resumed Wednesday morning will be taken up with the closing arguments.

THIS CHEWING GUM FROM OLD NEWPORT HAD "KICK" IN IT

Every day Internal Revenue Agent D. J. Gantt learns some new way to send whisky from the states where it grows into barren old Georgia. Tuesday he went down to the Union station to inspect some very neat packages of chewing gum, with which there came the ever-popular prize boxes, being in this instance bottles of whisky, about twenty quarts in all.

The express parcels were mailed to the United States Chicle company in the Austell building and were sent from the Newport Gum company in Newport, Ky. A representative of the concern here said that he knew nothing of the contents of the packages, and stated that he often resent parcels from here without opening them.

Suspicion as to the chewing gum boxes arose when some one observed that the gum was apparently leaking, before the consignment was removed from the express rooms.

A lady observed a small boy sprinkling sawdust on the ice to prevent pedestrians falling.

"That's real benevolence," declared the good lady.

"No, 'tain't," growled the boy, indignantly: "it's sawdust!"—Tit-Bits.

INJUNCTION SUIT WON BY SHRINERS

Last Efforts of Negro Organization to Use Name Fails When Supreme Court Refuses to Review Georgia Decisions.

The final note was sounded in Washington yesterday in the fight of the Atlanta Shriners to enjoin a local negro body from using the name Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, when the United States supreme court refused to review the decisions of the Georgia courts granting the injunction against the negroes.

The action of the United States supreme court makes permanent the injunction granted against the negroes by the Georgia courts.

It will be remembered that in December, 1914, Forrest Adair and other members of Yaarab Temple of Shriners filed a petition in Fulton superior court against Charles Faison and other local negroes to prevent them from using the name, emblems, insignia, badges and names of officers of the Shrine. On account of the disqualification of all the judges of Fulton superior court, Judge H. L. Patterson, of the Blue Ridge circuit, took jurisdiction of the case and after a trial lasting several days granted an injunction as prayed to last until the trial of the case before a jury. The negroes carried this judgment to the supreme court of Georgia on appeal. The supreme court sustained Judge Patterson in granting the injunction.

Perpetual Injunction.

When the case came on for trial before jury both sides agreed on Judge H. M. Reid, judge of the city court of Atlanta, as the trial judge. After a trial before Judge Reid and a jury, lasting two weeks, a verdict was rendered by the jury in favor of the white Shriners, upon which Judge Reid made the injunction perpetual against the negroes. They made a motion for a new trial on about forty different counts. This was heard by Judge Reid and denied. The negroes again appealed to the supreme court of Georgia. On September 14, 1918, Judge Reid's judgment denying the new trial was affirmed by the supreme court of Georgia.

Upon their defeat in the Georgia supreme court the negroes then presented to the supreme court of the United States a petition for certiorari in which they asked that the various judgments of the Georgia supreme court, and especially the last one, be set aside. This was heard on December 23, 1918, and the application finally denied.

And thus ends the efforts of the negroes in Georgia to set up a rival Shrine.

Colorable Imitation.

The name which was adopted by the negroes was "Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine." The ground upon which the injunction was granted was that this name is a colorable imitation of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and that the emblems, insignia, badges, titles of officers, etc., are an exact copy of the white order.

On the hearing in the supreme court of Georgia it was necessary for the governor to appoint on each occasion several superior court judges to take places of judges of the supreme court who were disqualified by reason of either relationship to members of the plaintiff order or membership in it. Judge W. E. Thomas was appointed first by Governor Slaton and the last time by Governor Dorsey to set as one of the judges in the case. He wrote both opinions of the supreme court in the case.

The leading counsel in the case from the beginning was W. H. Terrell, of the local bar. He went to Washington in December and appeared in opposition to the application of the negroes for a review of the Georgia decisions. He was assisted on all the trials of the case by James L. Mayson and W. A. Fuller, of this city.

Potter Is Here to Stimulate Community Singing in City

Ben J. Potter, one of the well-known choirmasters of the country, and a leader of choruses who has achieved wide recognition during the period of the war, has been sent to Atlanta by the War Camp Community Service to organize and stimulate community singing for the city.

Mr. Potter will devote his entire attention to a vigorous campaign for singing in the theaters, industrial plants, department stores and similar places where there are large gatherings of people. He brings with him the record of a year and a half in similar work in Detroit.

He is not unknown in the south. For eight years he was organist and choirmaster of the Monumental Episcopal church, of Richmond, Va., occupying the position of university organist at the University of Virginia at the same time. Later he came to the University of Chattanooga as head of the music department, and served St. Paul's church, Chattanooga, as organist and choirmaster.

He is a graduate of the Royal College of Organists, of London, and a fellow of the Guild of St. Cecilia. His work with choruses gained him an extensive reputation while at Richmond.

Mr. Potter has been cordially greeted by the musicians of Atlanta, who have extended to him numerous offers of co-operation.

Rotarians Plan Development Work Among City's Boys

In accordance with the policy adopted at the last meeting of the International Association of Rotary Clubs, a plan to survey the boy life of the city from all angles so as to assist in the development work among boys, was adopted at a large meeting of the members of the Atlanta Rotary club Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont hotel.

This work, according to W. R. C. Smith, the president, will not be done directly by the organization, but by the members, who will attempt to arouse public interest so that the youth of the city may secure the proper development, playgrounds, schools and all other environments that will help to make them good citizens.

The meeting Tuesday was addressed by A. A. Jameson, chief executive of the Atlanta Boy Scouts; Judge W. W. Tindall, of the juvenile court, and Professor W. H. Sutton, of the Tech High school, all of whom will assist the organization in the survey of the boy life in the city. Mr. Smith was authorized to appoint a committee to work out the details of the plan, which has already been taken up by over 450 Rotary clubs in this country.

According to A. S. Adams, of Atlanta, vice president of the international association, this work was begun by the association shortly before the war, and was finally stopped because it was decided to lend all the efforts of the organization to the work among the men in uniform. He stated it was the purpose of the plan to build up the development of boys and to assist in every way possible the development by teaching the coming generation such principles as thrift, sanitation and morality.

Present at the meeting were a number of men, among whom were Ensign Cerf Kahn, who was formerly connected with the Mutual Life Insurance company; Lieutenant William Kindon, son of Victor H. Kreigshaber, and Paul Norcross, who for some time has been employed by the engineering department of the government.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Hearts of the World."

(At the Atlanta.)

There are many unforgettable things about "Hearts of the World," the David W. Griffith picture which is being shown at the Atlanta, and one feature that patrons remember most is the music. The incidental music arranged for the Griffith film is rich in its quality and the tunes which are heard are tunes that are remembered. "Hearts of the World" is a love story of the first order and is being enjoyed at the Atlanta by thousands this week. Robert Harron, Lillion Gish, Dorothy Gish, George Fawcett and other well-known people make up the excellent cast. The picture will be shown for the final time Saturday. Seats should be reserved without delay.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)

A bill of Keith vaudeville of the very best type will be offered for the last time at the Lyric theater today, and tomorrow another program will be offered. The features for today are Loney Haskell, in flashes of wit, who keeps the audience in a perpetual roar, and Linton's Jungle Girls, whose snowball number has made a great hit.

Marcus Loew Vaudeville.

(At Loew's Grand.)

The current bill of Marcus Loew vaudeville at Loew's Grand abounds in grave, beauty, new tunes and scenic charm. The headliner is "Marcelle," a bewitching musical comedy, with a beauty chorus and lively comedians. The song numbers are fresh and tuneful, and the comedy is clean, sparkling. There are four other good acts. The picture feature is dainty Emmy Wehlen, in "Sylvia on a Spree."

Alla Nazamova.

(At the Forsyth.)

Alla Nazimova, hailed since her entrance into the picture world as the "wonder woman," will be seen all the rest of this week at the Forsyth theater in the third and the greatest of her picture program, "Eye for Eye," in which she takes the role of a Bedouin dancing girl, who believes in the Biblical injunction of an eye for an eye. She is rescued from virtual slavery by the man who has led French marines against her people, killing her father and the rest of his tribe, and the clash between love and revenge in her soul gives the basis of a wonderful play and allows for a marvelous play of expressions. There are many sensational features in the picture, including dancing scenes, panoramas of the desert, a great French ship, battles and others which are well worth the seeing. Great crowds have attended all performances.

"Virtuous Wives."

(At the Criterion.)

This week at the Criterion theater Anita Stewart is being starred in "Virtuous Wives," a screen adaptation of the story of the same name by Owen Johnson, which ran for ten months as a serial in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. It is a story of New York society life and marks the return to the screen of Miss Stewart after an absence of nearly a year. It is a most interesting picture and is produced upon a lavish scale. Notables in the supporting cast are Conway Tearl, Edwin Arden and Mrs. DeWolf Hopper. Miss Stewart has certainly lost none of her charm and ability, her portrayal being convincing and altogether clever.

Lila Lee.

(At the Vaudette.)

For a number of years a little girl known to the stage as "Cuddles" was the chief features of various attractions sent on the roa dby Gus Edwards. Now she has left vaudeville and musical comedy, and this youngest of all stars is proving her right to her position in the amusement world by her work under the Paramount banner. Today she will be seen at the Vaudette in one of her newest pictures entitled "Such a Little Pirate." In addition there will be a crackerjack Christy comedy.

ARBUCKLE IS FUNNIER THAN EVER AT RIALTO

Maybe you think you've seen Fatty Arbuckle when he was funny. If you have, and if you enjoyed that play, then go to see him this week at the Rialto in "Camping Out" and enjoy a real laugh, for he is funnier now than ever before in his life. The picture is a scream from staff to finish and large crowds at every performance testified to their appreciation of the comedy by laughter that no one tried to hush. The safety valves were entirely off for the day and will be all week. In addition the Rialto is offering Pauline Frederick in "Out of the Shadows."

TOM MOORE IS SHOWN IN PLAY OF THE WEST

Tom Moore, the meteoric star who has leaped into public favor, and who is now one of the biggest drawing cards of the Goldwyn galaxy of screen winners, will be seen for the last time today at the Strand in "Go West, Young Man." In this film he is shown as a young man who suddenly finds himself fairly tossed into a job. He is made a sheriff, principally because it is a job nobody else much wanted, and it was considered a joke to give it to him. But Moore wasn't a joke very long, and the desperadoes learned their lesson just too late.

MRS. N. R. JOHNSON HURT IN ELEVATOR

Mrs. N. R. Johnson, of 102 East Merritts avenue, is at Grady hospital suffering with severe injuries incurred in an elevator accident in a downtown department store shortly before noon Tuesday. Mrs. Johnson entered the elevator at the basement to go to the mezzanine floor, falling through the door as the lift started. Both legs were broken as her body was caught between the floor and the shaft.

War and Women Won't Mix, Negro Soldier Finds

Eve was indirectly the cause of Adam's loss of the pleasures of Eden; through love of Delila, Sampson was shorn of his locks and his power, and pride of his standing in the eyes of a dusky sweetheart has again made history repeat itself and cause Ephriam Jones, a colored Georgia soldier, to lose his good standing in the army.

Eph walked proudly into the personnel receiving station of Camp Gordon Tuesday afternoon, one sleeve of his coat adorned by a glittering six months' gold service stripe, and the other sleeve ornamented by another gold wound chevron. On his arm was the emblem that denoted the rank of a sergeant.

"Well, Eph," inquired one of the receiving officers after he had been told the negro's name, "how did you find things in France? Pretty warm, eh?"

"Lawdy, boss," replied the guileless Eph; "I ain't done do more than land in England when that there 'armastize' was signed."

"Then why in the name of general common sense are you wearing a service stripe and a wound stripe?" asked the surprised officer.

"Never heard of that partic'lar general," rejoined Eph, innocently. "But I seen lots of niggers wearing gold stripes on dey arms, an' I 'lowed I'd wear some, too, jist to please Lizah."

"Here; let me see your papers," demanded the receiving officer.

Eph obligingly handed them over, and a search revealed that he was a private instead of a sergeant.

"Dat woman, Lizah, ain't nothin' but trouble," he wailed. "When I went in de army she laughed at me and said I'd git shot at sunrise. I jist wanted to go home covered wid glory and surprise her. Now I reckon she's right 'bout dat 'sunrise' business."

Minus his many war decorations and assigned to a colored casual unit, Eph now knows that women and war won't mix.

ORDER WORK STOPPED ON CAMP AT COLUMBUS

Washington, January 7.—Work on Camp Benning, Columbus, Ga., will be ordered stopped immediately in compliance with a resolution adopted by the senate military committee today. The resolution was adopted after Secretary Baker and Assistant Secretary Crowell had outlined to the committee plans for permanent development of a rifle, machine gun training and tank corps establishment at Columbus, Ga., and artillery training fields at West Point, Ky., and Fayetteville, North Carolina.

Secretary Baker stated that all American military advisers believe the three fields are "absolutely essential for proper training of the regular army in peace times, but before proceeding further on the projects, the advice and approval of congress was desired.

After being told by Assistant Secretary Crowell that work at Columbus could be stopped immediately, the committee adopted a resolution offered by Senator McKeller, of Tennessee, providing that the camp be abandoned. Secretary Crowell said orders would be sent at once stopping all construction at Columbus.

Estimates furnished the committee showed that the loss to the government from abandonment of the camp would be less than two million dollars, the total cost of construction to date being estimated at one million dollars and reimbursement to owners of the land leased making the balance. The camp was to have cost fourteen million dollars.

Heavier expenditures have been made on the other two camps.

DANCE GIVEN WINNERS OF ATHLETIC EVENTS

The winners of the athletic contest, which was held on Stayer field on January 1, were the guests of honor at a dance at the Knights of Columbus hall at Camp Jessup last night.

Music was furnished by the camp orchestra and the athletes with their fair partners celebrated their victories with all the steps known to modern dancing.

Lieutenant Huttig, assistant adjutant, furnished the refreshments for the occasion.

The dance was to have been held in Company F barracks, and when a new batch of mechanics arrived and were placed there the disappointed winners thought that the big prize that had been promised them would not be awarded, but the Knights of Columbus men invited the winners to dance in their hall.

Boys Who Did Hauling Get Honorable Discharge

SCENE AT GORDON AUCTION.

Six hundred members of Uncle Sam's military forces of the remount depot yesterday received their honorable discharge from the service and began at once their return journey to civilian life.

The six hundred were made up of four contingents, 75 cavalry horses, 166 artillery horses, 250 draft mules and 75 pack mules. They leave the cavalry saddle, the cannon traces, the drab wagons and the army packs which they bore to help Uncle Sam blot out the Hun menace, to assume the burdens of the plow and the harvester to help Uncle Sam feed the starving millions of Europe.

The scene at the remount station when the sale was held was a most interesting one. A large crowd of stock dealers, farmers and merchants as well as soldiers gathered at 9 o'clock to witness the fall of the gavel that announced the sale of the first army veteran.

Sale Began Promptly.

The animals designated for sale were herded in a large pen connected by a runway to the roped-in square in which was demonstrated their good points. Promptly at 9 o'clock the auctioneer announced the beginning of the sale, the first big cavalry horse was driven into the arena, the driver's whip snapped and the bidding began.

The advertised warning that the animals would be sold "positively to the highest bidder" proved true in every detail, for only a very few of the big fellows enrolled in the cavalry or the artillery remained in the ring longer than two minutes and some only 15 or 20 seconds. Some sold as low as $60, while others brought as high as $150, though the average price paid was around $115 and $120.

Then came the sale of the mules, and the same quickness of disposal prevailed. Only a short time was required to dispose of the 325 mules put on auction. They brought fair prices.

Tuesday's, too, was the case of six hundred in which no charge was made—the sale being conducted purely on a cash or certified check basis. The stock dealers, who bought in groups, the farmers who bought single animals for field work, and the merchants who bought pairs for hauling, stepped up and settled their accounts without delay.

Have Had Fine Treatment.

In returning to civil life, the six hundred leave at Gordon many monuments to their faithfulness and efficiency. Foundations for buildings, graded roads, leveled hills and raised valleys stand all over the reservation as recommendations for their willingness to work and their unqualified patriotism.

They leave the remount station after several months of the best of treatment, the finest of food and the most careful housing. The men who had charge of them at Gordon state that they hope the veterans receive just as good treatment at the hands of their new owners as they did when they were enlisted with Uncle Sam.

Major Malbon G. Richardson, commander of the remount, was in charge of Tuesday's sale, and he provided one of the best auctioneers to be had in Atlanta.

Wounded "Vets" Are Lost on Way To Camp Gordon

Lost, Strayed or Stolen—Three carloads of veteran wounded soldiers.

If military authorities were given to advertising the above would probably be the notice that would be used by officials of the camp receiving station in an attempt to discover the whereabouts of a considerable number of convalescents who were several days ago said to be on their way to Gordon.

The telegram announcing the shift of three cars loaded with wounded veterans from Camp Merritt, New Jersey, to Camp Gordon was received at the personnel receiving station last Saturday. It stated that the troops were then en route to the camp and requested that immediate arrangements be made to accommodate them upon arrival at the base hospital.

The officials at the receiving station at once got into action, providing complete facilities for receiving the "vets" to the hospital as soon as they came in and providing comfortable quarters in the hospital for them—and that proved to be the last development in the case.

No wounded men have yet shown up and no further information has been received explaining the delay. Officials stated Tuesday afternoon that they believe the troops to be on the way here and are expecting them every moment, but that they are unable to account for their failure to show up on schedule time.

The wounded men come from Camp Merritt and it is understood that they have all seen active service on the firing line. What units they belong to, what is the extent of their injuries or what will be their status at Gordon no one is as yet able to say.

SPLENDID MOVIE BILL AT LIBERTY REST OF THIS WEEK

For the remainder of this week the Camp Gordon Liberty theater offers a splendid program of moving pictures, which will prove especially appealing to soldiers, Manager W. W. Hughes yesterday announced.

William S. Hart, in "Branding Broadway," a gripping silent drama, is slated for Wednesday and Thursday nights, and Doug Fairbanks, in his best-known screen success, "Arizona," is to appear on the Liberty screen on Friday and Saturday nights.

AERIAL SQUADRON LANDS AT WHEELER

Macon, Ga., January 7.—An aerial squadron from Souther field, en route to Charleston, S. C., landed at Camp Wheeler this afternoon. The trip from Americus was made in sixty minutes. The trip will be resumed tomorrow by way of Augusta. In the squadron are Lieutenants T. W. Symons, H. A. Boggs, G. V. Kelley, A. C. Mann and W. J. Welsh and Sergeant Biddle. They are continuing work for the government in making maps and laying out aerial routes.

Many Boys Anxious To Secure Training In Auto Mechanics

The Tech night school opened its winter term on Monday evening with a very large enrollment. Because of the overflow in several classes and the necessity for forming new divisions, thus providing room for a few more applications, registrations will be received through Thursday night, according to an announcement made last night by Professor A. B. Morton, head of the department.

The registration for the course in automobile mechanics awakened a particularly enthusiastic response. Double the number of applications were received than were provided for, which has necessitated a readjustment of the classes. This course, and that in machine shop work, are filled to capacity and no further applications will be received.

There are a few vacancies, however, in the new classes in Morse telegraphy, architecture and electric engineering, and it is for these courses and applicants may apply until the Thursday night deadline.

YIDDISH PLAYERS ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS

Again the Jewish Welfare board will entertain the soldiers stationed at the various camps around Atlanta, this time with a troupe of Yiddish players. The date of this performance is Wednesday night, January 8, at 8 o'clock, and the place the Jewish Educational alliance at 90 Capitol avenue.

The troupe, which is on tour from New York, and is playing at all the camps in the southeastern division, consists of Rachael Rosenfeldt, the celebrated actress, in dramatic sketches; Harry Rosenfeldt, the famous comedian; Karina Post, in character singing, and Leon Rosenstein, in folk songs, with Jean Faurel at the piano.

150 ADDED TO STAFF AT FORT M'PHERSON

One hundred and fifty new men will arrive at Fort McPherson this morning from Camp Greenleaf and be added to the working force of general hospital No. 6.

Among the new men coming are thirty non-commissioned officers, six typists and twenty cooks.

Small groups of patients and men are being discharged from the fort each day, but official announcements state that the number leaving are not nearly so great as the number that are arriving.

A carload of wounded men are expected to arrive there early this morning.

FREIGHT FOR OVERSEAS STEADILY INCREASING

Washington, January 7.—Steady increase in the overseas movement of freight since the signing of the armistice, with an incidental accumulation at Atlantic and gulf ports, is shown in a report today of the exports control committee of the railroad administration. Most of the accumulation is at north Atlantic ports, where an excess of 5,722 cars were received over deliveries in December.

The estimated tonnage of export freight, exclusive of bulk grain and coal disposed of during December, was an increase of 107 per cent over December, 1917.

The report notes that 34,000 tons of shipping will arrive at Hampton roads in the next ten days for orders, and that these vessels can be sent to any port needing ships to relieve freight congestion.

NEW CITY DIRECTORY READY BEFORE MARCH

It was announced Tuesday that the new city directory will be issued between February 15 and March 1. The canvass for information of the new directory has just been completed. Persons and business establishments who have changed their addresses since the canvassers called are asked to notify the City Directory company, 29½ Marietta street. Changes should be made personally or by letter.

A BOND BEGINNING.

Mayor Key and council are to be congratulated at having taken preliminary steps toward enabling Atlanta to supply absolutely necessary municipal facilities through a bond issue.

The suggestion seems to have the unanimous approval of council and indications point to submission to the people within the next few months of a bond issue with which to do much imperative work that can only be done through bonds.

Fortunately, the state constitution has been so amended that the city can issue bonds now by a vote of two-thirds of those voting, thus assuring favorable action on any reasonable bond issue.

Two proposed bond issues have been defeated by not having received the requisite vote under the old bond law provision that required two-thirds of the full registered vote, though in each instance the vote cast for bonds was almost unanimous.

This archaic constitutional provision has made it almost impossible for Atlanta to utilize her credit as is done by other cities and the total bonded indebtedness of the city today is less than $6,000,000, while the city's assets are two or three times the amount of its bonded liability.

No city of its size in America is in better financial condition than Atlanta.

All that is needed now is for the city to do for its streets, its hospitals, its sanitary department, and its schools the things that should have been done long ago and failure to do which has worked a serious injustice to the public.

It is fortunate that council realizes the gravity of the situation and that it is ready to put up to the people the privilege of applying the only remedy that will solve the problem—a bond issue.

AFTER-WAR THRIFT.

If the war had done nothing else for the American people than to imbue them with the spirit of thrift that alone would have gone a long way toward compensating for the cost and the sacrifice.

That it has taught lessons of thrift and economy to millions who before never gave such things a thought is shown by the records of liberty bond and war savings stamps sales, and also by official statistics bearing upon the nation's food supply and per capita consumption in comparison with those of corresponding periods prior to the war.

How lasting the effect of our lesson in thrift and economy is to be time alone will tell.

As The New York Times aptly puts it, "it is a question of vital importance to the nation—to its people, and it should have answer through organized effort to continue and make permanent the impulse to save, so widely and profitably stimulated under the stress of war."

America has been the "spend-thrift nation" long enough; it has labored under—and deserved—the universal characterization of "the most extravagant and wasteful nation in the world" too long for its own good.

In our wastefulness we have needed an imperative cause to reform. The war supplied that cause; it necessitated a reformation, temporarily at least. Let us hope it is to be permanent; that there will be no "backsliding" into our old come-easy, go-easy habits of wanton profligacy.

Europe centuries ago learned this lesson, has never forgotten it and is practicing it today.

One of our chief forms of wastefulness is not so much in money itself as it is in foodstuffs.

Ordinarily, for instance, when a chicken is brought into an American kitchen and prepared for dinner only the edible part of it is utilized; the feathers, head, feet, bones, etc., are deposited in the garbage can or wasted.

In Europe not a feather nor a bone, nor a particle of the interior, is wasted. It is all saved to serve some practical purpose, and so it is with everything else.

The average European family will live on what the average American family throws away.

The same thrift practiced in this country, as it is in Europe, would save the American people hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

THE WAR AND BOXING.

The war has done much for the sport of boxing—characterized by its friends as "the manly art of self-defense."

The war department gave official recognition to boxing and officially approved it as a sport, as a means of recreation, as a builder of soldierly character and as a developer of stamina, physique and a spirit of self-reliance, and in every training camp in the country Uncle Sam placed an instructor in boxing.

Boxing in the armies of the world has done much to cleanse the sport and remove from it the odium under which it had fallen during recent years.

The sport is one in which gentlemen engage without loss of self-respect. It is said that some of the states which formerly frowned it down may now give the art a legal status.

Harry L. Davis, the progressive-spirited mayor of Cleveland, Ohio, who was instrumental in re-establishing boxing in his city, the other day said of the sport that—

"Professional boxing bouts, properly controlled, furnish a clean, wholesome form of amusement, comparable with any other sport.

"Boxing as conducted here has entertained thousands upon thousands of red-blooded citizens during the last three years. The fact that the game here has been subjected to no attacks by the element which was formerly of the opinion that professional boxing was not a gentlemanly sport convinces me that the game has proved itself to be the clean, refined sport that I have always contended it is. I expect 1919 to further vindicate my views regarding boxing."

An effort is being made to restore boxing to the good graces of the law-makers of Illinois, of which The Chicago Tribune recently said:

The soldiers and sailors have made boxing moral. Why can not the legislature make it legal? If it did the men in service good, physically and morally, why can it not do good to young men if they are not in service? If the army and navy can supervise boxing matches and keep them clean and free from objectional features is that task clear beyond the ability of civil authorities?

The army and navy boxers have knocked the moral turpitude out of the ring. They have won popular approval. Why not allow a healthy sport to develop in a decent fashion?

Eliminate the rough element from boxing—by that we mean the "toughs," the "plug-uglies," the "meal-ticket" prizefighters and ring parasites—and there is no reason in the world why boxing should not be as clean and as desirable a sport as baseball or football.

Keep the sport on a high, manly plane, and there is no reason why boxing should not be as helpful to the boys and young men in civilian life as it has been in the personnel of the army.

Cheer up. Prices will come down the minute they realize they're in danger of getting out of the attraction of this little old earth.

Just as George Washington always will be remembered as the father of his country, Woodrow Wilson may go down in world history as the god-father of half a dozen or so republics!

Events have succeeded each other with such rapidity during the last twelve-month it seems that just as we were becoming accustomed to the old year he gracefully bowed himself out.

If it were not for a little group of senatorial soreheads and a few disgruntled politicians on the outside looking in, the laudation of President Wilson these days would be world-wide and unanimous.

Should the citizens of that part of Germany lying in the path of the Polish invaders call upon those of the Hun-devastated portions of Belgium and of France for commiseration they might with rare propriety be told to look for sympathy in the lexicon.

About the only redeeming quality a hip-pocket pistol can claim consists in its ability, upon occasion, to preach an eloquent and unanswerable sermon in behalf of prohibition.

Typical Hun consistency: Von Hindenburg whines about having to give up the rolling stock, most of which the Huns themselves stole from France and Belgium.

From Nothing in 1914 to Half a Million in 1918 Record Georgia Pig Clubs

Editor Constitution: The following is a brief summary of some of the phases and activities of the Pig club work in Georgia during 1918 as carried on by the extension division of the State College of Agriculture in co-operation with the United States department of agriculture.

Fourteen school pigs in one county raised on the waste from scholars' lunch baskets sold for $590 at an auction sale.

One town of 2,000 people produced 35,000 pounds of pork from pigs raised in backyards. The white boys of the same county raised $12,340 worth of meat hogs, and the negro boys $2,134.85, or $14,474.85 produced by Pig club boys.

An all-cotton county reports an increase of 5,000 hogs in 1918.

Fifty-seven Pig club members in one county raised 250 head of registered Duroc-Jerseys. The amount invested was $2,300. An auction sale disposed of eighty head of surplus. The sale and remaining hogs represent $7,800.

Twenty-two schools in one county are raising twenty-two purebred hogs this winter on waste from the pupils' dinner baskets.

With twenty-eight Pig club hogs, one county won seventy-six ribbons and prizes amounting to $817.50, including the state championship.

The state champion was the 11-year-old son of a one-horse farmer who bought his pig at an auction sale for $37.50. She is worth $300 today.

Six Pig club boys in one county will start hog farms in 1919. Three of the boys have their hogs and land. All of them started with one small pig.

Of the 2,105 hogs at the Southeastern fair, 345 were owned and raised by Pig club boys who won thirty-one ribbons and $330 in prizes in the open ring. Three of the ribbons were junior champions.

Of the 350 hogs at the State fair, 87 were owned and raised by Pig club boys who won 39 ribbons in the open ring and $272 in prizes. One of the ribbons was a junior champion.

Pig club boys won 70 ribbons and $505 in prizes in the open ring at two Georgia fairs. Four of the ribbons were junior champions.

There were 8,678 members in the Pig clubs in 1918. The draft last spring prevented the number reaching 10,000, which was the number aimed at.

The total sum represented by the hogs and pigs in the hands of Pig club members during 1918 was a half million dollars.

The increase in the initial cost of Pig club pigs in 1918 was almost 60 per cent more than in 1917.

The increase in the final value of hogs raised by Pig club boys in 1918 over those of 1917 was over 56 per cent.

The increase in the number of purebred hogs raised by Pig club boys in 1918 over 1917 was over 306 per cent.

The increase in the number of pigs exhibited at two fairs by Pig club boys in 1918 over 1917 was nearly 60 per cent.

The increase in profits of hogs raised in 1918 over 1917 was over 61 per cent.

At the second annual Negro Meat show there were 896 pieces of hog meat exhibited, 284 dozen fresh eggs and 43½ pounds of butter. A close inspection detected 57 shoulders slightly off in odor and but two actually sour.

Scrub Sires Imperil Stock Improvement

Editor Constitution: Travel where you will in the state of Florida, you will find the range infested with one constant pest; that is the scrub boar and bull. The man with good stock must keep on the constant watch lest his litter or calves will be the offspring of inferior males. In converse with hog men in my county I am told that the "razorback" or "hazel splitter" can whip the best male on the range. Until we have a fence law this pest will continue to stand in the way of larger profits on pork and beef.

What we need is some work done in our next legislature. We should have a law prohibiting any male stock from running at large except pure-bred and registered stock. Give any man the right to shut up a scrub for six days and then to emasculate it if not claimed by the owner. Make every man a sheriff and give him the authority to arrest sir criminal scrub and put him in jail.

Men who want to improve their stock cannot all afford to own hundreds of acres of land and let the open range alone. It would be fine if they could, but land at $25 an acre in the rough is a little high for the average man to use for pasture. There may come a time when it will be cheap at that. The industry must come up by evolution and not by sudden creation, however. Many things would be fine and prosperity would boom if wishes were money. When the very best is impossible to obtain then it becomes best to get the best possible. The time for a no-fence law is apparently not yet; the time for a no-scrub law has been ripe for some time. Why not have it?

This is purely an economic question. It means more pork and beef. It means that one neighbor would not have to shoot another's hog on the sly as has often been done in order to get rid of a pest. Some of us could dig up some bones in testimony of this, too.

Men in the country are not lawyers; neither do they go to the legislature. They elect men to go there and expect them to do all they can for the betterment of the country. I am not going there myself; a large number of my farmers would like to send me if I would do this one thing for them. Let the man who is already elected feel the pulse of the rural populace on this question and then act.

A. E. MAXWELL,
Assistant Emergency Demonstration Agent, University of Florida.

DECATUR IS OBSERVING DAILY PRAYER SERVICE

The world-wide week of prayer is being observed in Decatur this week, union services being conducted at the various churches in rotation.

The wide interest felt is shown by the fact that a prominent layman, Colonel George M. Napier, will be principal speaker at the service on Wednesday evening, which will be held at the Baptist church. The pastor will also take part.

Tuesday evening Dr. C. R. Hutchings, of the Baptist church, had charge of the services. The nightly prayer meetings will close Friday evening.

Sing Along the Way.

I.

Sing along the way, heart,
Sing along the way;
Joy, that meets the morning,
Still makes up the day
And the blue sky will blossom
From the shadows of the gray.

II.

Sing along the way, heart,
Sing along the way,
Losses and crosses,
But still a sunny ray;
Winter—but it's dreaming
Of the roses of the May!

Proverbs of the Highway.

It's no wonder some brethren "warm up" in meetin'—satan sits so close to 'em!

We forget to cover the heathen at home with charity, and about all the covering the foreign heathen really need is—umbrellas.

If you had a fence 'round the world you'd want to hire somebody to sit on the fence with you and swap fish tales.

Some folks are willing to obey the command as to loving your enemies, but they want 'em close enough to love 'em to death.

Going on Together.

We ain't a-faultin' Providence
Any kind o' weather;
With one accord
He thank the Lord,
Goin' on together.

With a single flash of Sun,
Glory 'round you flingin',
Miles an' miles
The country smiles
An' all the world is singin'.

Always lookin' to the light
When the Thunder's drummin',
Still content
With blessings sent,

Lightning's Lesson.

The Lightning gets where it's going and attends to business, while Thunder hangs around, growling because he can't get anywhere.

Dr. R. O. Flinn Goes "Overseas" to Serve With the Y. M. C. A.

Another of Atlanta's noted preachers has been called into foreign service, in keeping with the policy of the Y. M. C. A. to provide, in connection with their religious work, the most gifted men who are available in the ministry. This time it is Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, who has been chosen to carry a message of faith to the men of the American expeditionary forces who are still in France.

A special meeting of the elders of the church on Monday evening was held to discuss Dr. Flinn's absence, and at that time the board gave its unanimous consent for the pastor to take a six months' leave in order to enter overseas work for the Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Flinn's pastorate of twenty years at the North Avenue Presbyterian church has served to endear him to not only the people of Atlanta, but thousands of Tech students who have attended services at this church during their stay in the city. His ability as an administrator and a leader of young men has been amply proved, and it is with a certainty of his successful work among the soldiers that his membership see him leave.

Dr. Flinn's field will cover a wide range of territory, according to present plans. He will visit camps in France and England, and even in Germany, where the occupational forces are stationed. The character of his service will be largely evangelical, and will fit into the program of the Y. M. C. A. put into effect since the signing of the armistice, aiming at the maintenance of high standards and morale among the men of the army while there is comparatively little action.

The esteem in which he is held by his congregation was shown Dr. Flinn last Wednesday evening, when, upon the occasion of his twentieth anniversary as pastor of the church, the members presented him with a purse of $1,000.

Damage Suit Filed Against Gas Company After Asphyxiation

A suit for cash damages was entered against the Atlanta Gas Light company yesterday by the mother of Douglas Sams, who was asphyxiated November 2 at his home, 11 Crew street.

The mother, Mrs. Mary B. Sams, charges negligence on the part of the gas concern in equipping the Sams home with gas fixtures, in that the escaping fumes which killed her son had leaked through a meter.

The suit asserts that young Sams, who was 16 years of age and a contributor to the support of the mother, had worked all night and upon going to bed in the morning was killed by fumes which leaked into his room.

The suit was filed in superior court yesterday afternoon by Attorney Reuben Arnold.

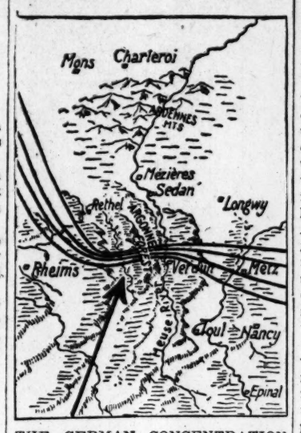

"America's First Big Battle in France"

"The advance of the Americans against the great German concentration in the Ardennes sector, cutting the transport line on which the Germans depended in Champagne—a difficult task performed without mistake."

(From World's Work.)

The first big American battle in France began on the 26th of September.

At Chateau-Thierry the American troops had shown what they were capable of. The brigades with General Gouraud's army also showed a similar fighting mettle in the great battle near Rheims, in which General Gouraud administered to the German troops the worst defeat which any attacking army has received in the war and which was immediately followed by the offensive of General Foch. But these divisions were acting as parts of French armies and these battles were more French than American. At St. Mihiel the American army accomplished its purpose perfectly and with a minimum of loss, but the Germans had intended to evacuate St. Mihiel in a few days anyway and their plans for resistance were not on a large scale.

THE GERMAN CONCENTRATION OUR ARMY BROKE THROUGH.

Up to September 26, 1918, the German defense lines were indicated by the four parallel lines. In Belgium, Artois and Champagne the first, second, third and fourth trench lines were considerable distances apart. In the Argonne sector, however, all four of them were practically together.

The battle beginning on September 26 in the Argonne was to the American army much what the battle of the Somme was to the new British army. It was the first major test of our ability against the Germans in positions long fortified, naturally strong, and so vital to their whole plan of battle on the western front that they were forced to make every effort to hold them.

Soon after the battle began one of the first German officers captured remarked that if the Americans intended to push forward in the Argonne they were in for the biggest blood letting on the western front. His prophecy was correct as far as the intention of the Germans was concerned, but he was wrong in his facts. There was nothing in the American attack to compare with the early disasters of other armies in the war, which were forced, without adequate strength or preparation, to take strong positions. The German intention to hold this point at all costs was obvious from the situation, and was confirmed by the testimony of prisoners who were captured in the operation.

The four systems of German prepared defense lines, which were fairly far apart in France and Belgium, all came together so that they almost made one quadruple system between the Argonne and Mezieres. The task of the American army was to break all four of these defense lines at once, a task which had never been accomplished hitherto in the war, for the German break through in March did not succeed in penetrating such a series of defense. Moreover, the German defenses were situated in a so difficult for operation that it had been considered impossible since the lines were first established through the Argonne in the fall of 1914.

These immensely strong positions were held with desperation by the German troops, because they defended the absolutely vital lines of communication for the German armies in Champagne. These lines were based on the railroad from Metz through Sedan to Mezieres and on the railroad running north out of Mezieres.

Over these roads food and munitions were brought from Germany to the fighting lin west of Sedan, and back along these lines the wounded were moved to base hospitals far back on German soil. The German staff knew that the cutting of this main communication line would be a serious matter. But for the signing of the armistice, it would doubtless have made it necessary for their troops west of Sedan to fall back many miles and establish new supply lines. This would have been difficult, because the pressure which was being put on this part of the battle line was tremendous. The German army could not build a new r road farther northeast to take the place of the one from Metz to Maubeuge, as it could easily have done in a more level country. The rough, rugged Ardennes forest region which lay just back of their position made railroad construction too difficult to be attempted. Therefore, the German high command had determined to hold their Argonne position at any cost.

Between September 26 and November 7 the Americans broke the four lines of German trenches and reached Sedan. The first part of the battle was slow, but it was the part that counted most, for in it the Germans used up many of their best divisions and so weakened their forces that our later rapid progress was possible.

The American forces, by the 8th of November, had Sedan. They also had under fire the town of Carignan, thereby cutting the special loop from Carignan to Metz. They also had Mezieres and Charleville under fire. The whole transportation system on which the German armies based their operations in Champagne was, therefore, cut, and the evacuation of material in large quantity had to be done through Liege.

The significance of the American advance through the four lines of German defense and up the river to a point where the German main supply system is cut can hardly be over-estimated.

THE FINAL GERMAN PREDICAMENT
The light lines represent the main German supply lines. By November 7 the Americans had cut the supply line at Sedan, and had Carignan and Mezieres under fire and out of business. The British had cut the railroad lines around Hirson and were in the front of Maubeuge. This prevented the shipment of supplies through Metz to troops in the west. The Germans in the pocket between Hirson and Sedan were in a very uncomfortable position.

The German concentration of men and artillery was greater here than at any other part of their front, except at one place on the British front, and it was about equal to that. Moreover, the Argonne is a most difficult country for offensive operations. Because of the difficulties of the terrain the allies had not tried to break through at this point during the four years of fighting. The defenses plus the character of the country had made the position about the hardest possible one to take. The Germans had excellent troops posted there and had ordered them to hold it at all costs, because the position was vital to the safety of their armies.

It is extraordinary that such a task should be accomplished, without any large mistake, by an army in its first major operation. Nor were there any small mistakes except such as always occur in all armies and in all wars. There was no great slaughter. The losses were no greater than were to be expected in such an advance. This does not mean the belittling of the French operation to the west of the American army, but the German general staff here learned that the American army could not only fight well, as units of French and British armies, but that it could, of itself, and by itself, defeat the best troops that Germany had in the best positions which they could make. They found also that one of their main supply lines was broken, and General Hine's passage of the river between Stenay and Dun-sur-Meuse must have convinced them that even the river line could not be held.

Health Talks---By William Brady, M.D.

A TYPICAL CASE OF CANCER.

R. J. was a man 52 years old, an inveterate pipe smoker and an ignorant man, not merely lacking in higher education but densely ignorant—he could scarcely write his name on paper. His wife was ignorant, too, and she died of ignorance—she bled to death, not suddenly, but by easy stages over several months of time, from so simple a cause as hemorrhoids, which, out of the fear born of ignorance, she refused to have cured by operation.

R. J. developed an obstinate "cold sore" on his lower lip. His doctor attending the man's son, noticed the sore and inquired how long it had been present. R. J. said it had been there about two months. "It looks very much like epithelioma—cancer," observed the doctor. "Oh, no," replied R. J., "it is healing up. I'm putting ——— onto it."

About three months later R. J. visited the doctor's office in behalf of another member of his family. The lip sore had increased in size. The doctor now said, "There is no question about it, that is a cancer. Better have it removed now, before it is too late."

"Oh, no," said R. J., "I've found a man who can cure cancer without cutting. He makes a salve that never fails. The salve is made from a recipe his grandfather got from an Indian—"

"The salve will never cure your cancer," the doctor insisted. "Take my advice and have the operation now."

Two months later, R. J. visited the doctor on his own behalf. In the interim he had met a man who had been operated on by the doctor three years before, in the doctor's office, under a local anesthetic, for cancer of the lip. R. J. desired that operation for himself.

The doctor examined the man and found that some lymph nodes underneath the jaw had been secondarily involved since the man's last appearance in the office. "All right, it is still not too late, but we'll have to send you to the hospital now, administer a general anesthetic, and remove not only the part of the lip involved, but also these cancerous nodes under the jaw."

No, R. J. wished only the office operation that had proved successful in the other man's case. This, however, the doctor would not do, for it could not prove a success. But R. J. could not understand, and would not submit to the necessary operation. So he went his way.

Before the end of the year R. J. died of cancer. That is, cancer was entered on the death certificate. But what really killed the man was this: Contributing cause of death, ignorance; direct cause, credulity.

FULTON COMMISSION ENDS THREE POSITIONS

The positions of highway engineer, superintendent of dirt roads and custodian of the building were abolished, and widespread changes made in the public works department system at a meeting Monday of the county board of commissioners.

Eaves, chief engineer, will take those of custodian of the building, and the position of superintendent of dirt roads will be abolished entirely.

The office of highway engineer was held by Tom Wilson, that of custodian of the biulding was filled by James Martin, and Captain Albert Howell was superintendent of dirt roads.

Captain Howell and Tom Wilson, it is understood, will be appointed inspectors of contract work and of other public improvements.

William A. Hansell was re-elected superintendent of the public works, and A. A. Clark, re-elected convict warden at Monday meeting.

Dr. George Noble, Jr., was appointed county physician to succeed Dr. S. T. Biggers, and the following county physicians were appointed: Dr. Paul McDonald, Dr. W. J. Auten, Dr. S. C. The annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Juvenile Protective association will be held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Ansley hotel. At the meeting the election of officers will be held and plans for the present year formulated. A large number of representatives from southern states will attend the meeting.

At 1 o'clock a luncheon will be held at the hotel, when Mayor James L. Key will deliver a short address on the origin and value of the juvenile court of Atlanta. The arrangements are in charge of Rev. Crawford Jackson, general secretary of the organization. The following will be present and deliver short addresses: Rev. J. Railroad Booklet To Show Resources Of States of Dixie

The heads of the agricultural departments of practically all of the railroads in the south operating under the United States railroad administration met here yesterday in the office of W. W. Croxton, chairman of the standing committee of the agricultural section of the United States railroad administration, and perfected plans for compiling booklets advertising the resources of the different southern states to be used for the purpose of bringing new settlers into the south.

All of the railroads under federal management will co-operate in this advertising campaign, and no particular railroad will feature the lands along its line. There will be a booklet issued for each of the southern states and every phase of agricultural and horticultural activity will be featured that will be of interest to the prospective settler.

These booklets will receive a wide distribution throughout the north and west and, being issued by the agricultural section of the United States railroad administration, will appeal very strongly to the northern farmer desirous of changing to a more equable climate, and splendid results are anticipated from this advertising.

It is expected that the booklet advertising Georgia will be ready for distribution in three or four weeks, and while the booklets are being printed an extensive advertising campaign will be carried on throughout the north and west, calling the attention of the farmers in those sections to the wonderful opportunities that Georgia and the other southern states have to offer.

Rail Board Allows Augusta-Southern Schedule Changes

The first meeting of the state railroad commission since the new members were sworn in was held Tuesday morning, at which time Paul B. Trammell, of Dalton, was elected vice chairman of the commission, to succeed Judge George Hillyer, one of the outgoing members.

The petition of the Augusta Southern railway to be allowed to change the schedule of Nos. 2 and 3 between Tennille and Augusta was considered. The commission authorized the company to change the schedule so that the trains will leave Tennille at 7 a. m. and arrive in Augusta at 11:30 a. m.; leave Augusta 2:30 p. m. and arrive in Tennille 8:15 a. m., eastern time.

The commission heard the petition of the Midland railway, which asked that the company be allowed to issue $1,000,000 first consolidated mortgage bonds. Final action on the petition was postponed until a thorough investigation of the situation could be made by the commission.

As the result of numerous complaints made to the commission from the public in regard to the service of Augusta-Aiken Railway and Electric corporation, the commission on Tuesday ordered the corporation to immediately adopt "vigorous methods to improve and put in reasonably safe and efficient condition its roadway and superstructure, poles and wires, passenger equipment and facilities, necessary and used in the conduct of its passenger business."

Preacher Who Married Young Woman He Shot Now Wanted by Rome

The Rev. Sirl Winchester is in again, metaphorically speaking. Of course, he hasn't yet got out. But even if he had, he'd be back "in," because a warrant charging him with beating a board bill in Rome was received by Sheriff Lowry yesterday afternoon.

And even if the imprisoned minister does get his freedom on the charge of shooting Mrs. Mary Hines, alias Green, now Mrs. Winchester, whom he he married last Sunday, he will have to answer the charge from Rome.

The Rev. Winchester was in that city in the interests of the American Social Purity association. Although the warrant does not go into details, it is possible that it was on occasion of this trip that the alleged offense of avoiding the landlady was committed.

Mrs. Winchester persists in avoiding the public. All efforts to find her have been to no avail. She has not visited her husband's cell, jail attaches say, since the Sunday she came down, kissed and made up, popped the question, and went out and got a preacher and married her assailant.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES ON COTTON FOR EUROPE

$4.50 New Rate From South Atlantic Ports to Liverpool.

Washington, January 7.—Announcement of a lowering of freight rates on cotton from south Atlantic and gulf ports to Europe was made in a letter received by Senator Smith, of South Carolina, from the shipping board.

Under the new schedule, the rate from south Atlantic ports to Liverpool will be $4.50; to French Atlantic ports, $5.25, and to Italian ports, $5.50. From gulf ports, an increase of 25 cents to each point will be made.

The board had not planned to put the new rates in effect until February 1, but at the earnest request of the South Carolina senator the plan was changed so as to make them effective at once.

An amendment to the cotton futures act which would restrict deliveries on contract to five white grades has been prepared by Senator Smith, of South Carolina, who plans to introduce it tomorrow. The five grades are middling, strict low middling, low middling, strict middling and good middling.

HUGE SERVICE FLAG WILL BE UNFURLED AT CHAMBER DINNER

Acceptances to the annual meeting and dinneer, which the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is to hold next Tuesday, are being received at Secretary Cooper's office and indications are that it will have the fullest attendance of any meeting ever held under the auspices of the organization.

Two hundred and twenty-five members had accepted the invitations and a tentative program was yesterday submitted to the program committee. The three principal speeches of the occasion will be delivered by President S. C. Dobbs, ex-President W. H. White and Dr. M. Ashby Jones.

The unfurling of a beautiful banner bedecked with 2,531 stars, representing the members of the organization, their sons and brothers and employees in the service, will be one of the most interesting features of the occasion. Three hundred and eighty-nine of the stars represents the members, their sons and brothers, the remaining representing their employees. Thirty of the stars are gold and twenty-five are red, representing the dead and wounded who are connected with the organization.

Y. M. C. A. GIRLS HELP THE 82D BOYS UNDER SHELLFIRE

Neuilly, Paris, January 7.—Officers of the Eighty-second division, recovering from wounds in the Red Cross hospital at Nueilly, tell many stories of their experiences on the front, but one of the things that seemed to impress them most was the work done by two American women belonging to the Y. M. C. A. These women were the Sweeney sisters, Miss Mary and Miss Sunshine (they say she is well named), from Pine Grove, Ky., who were with the Eighty-second division when it went to the front.

Every day, to quote Lieutenant Hook, of Augusta, Ga., who was one of the wounded, the girls used to hop a truck and ride up to the little village where the Eighty-second had its advance headquarters, and which was under almost constant shellfire. In fact, the village was so far gone that the men were not billeted in the town at all, but just outside, in pup tents. The girls would spend the whole day making hot chocolate for the troops, over a bonfire, in great iron kettles hanging from cranes.

"It saved our lives, more than once," said the lieutenant. "And no matter how much chocolate they had made, if a new load of men would come in, they went to work and in a few minutes they had hot drinks for them all. Sometimes they were on the job getting their kettles cleaned out before we'd had breakfast. And always joking and laughing."

Lieutenant Hook adds that the girls wanted to be allowed to sleep in the village, being willing to live in pup tents, but that the "boys" would not hear to that, because the shelling was so much heavier in the day time than at night.

At home Miss Mary Sweeney is a college professor, and Miss Sunshine is a farmer.

Family Complications Result From Cashing Of Allotment Checks

All sorts of family complications were brought up when Robert James a negro, better known as "Nep," was arraigned before United States Commissioner Carter Tuesday morning on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The offense centered around the cashing of two allotment checks amounting to $121, sent from France by "Nep's" cousin to his wife.

According to the prisoner, the soldier's wife, Gertrude Thomas, was separated from him six months before he left for the other side, and is now living with another man, so she doesn't deserve the allotment, anyway. Furthermore, the deserted husband has written letters, it seems, and some of these were shown at the trial, showing that he wants his grandmother to have the money and not his wife.

Nevertheless, the exchange must be made, according to law, as the family has found out. Robert says that his grandmother got the check and he took it to his uncle, G. W. Wright, who indorsed it and had it cashed. This worked very well until the irate Gertrude learned of the checks and declared that regardless of marital infelicity, the money was hers. Even after it was in her possession she insisted on making more trouble. But she did not appear at the trial.

The messenger, who was instrumental in getting the check converted into greenbacks, was committed to jail by Commissioner Carter in default of $300 bond, and upon complaint of Assistant District Attorney Henley, who conducted the case, the grandmother, who is in the neighborhood of 95 years of age, and scarcely able to get about, was bound over on her own recognizance.

Trained Nurse Sues Husband of Woman Who Pulled Her Hair

Mrs. B. L. Smith, a pretty young trained nurse, has entered suit against the husband of the woman who she accuses of tearing her hair and scratching her face while she was on duty at the bedside of Pope Driver, former well-known Atlantan, now residing in Birmingham.

The nurse asks $5,000 damages on the grounds that she was injured by the wife's attack and humiliated. The husband, instead of the wife, is sued because of laws holding a husband responsible for the acts of his wife.

The alleged attack occurred on November 23 at the Stafford home, 2015 Avenue G, Birmingham, while Mrs. Smith was nursing Mr. Driver, who was seriously ill at the time. The nurse says in her suit that she was feeding the patient a special selection of delicacies when his sister, Mrs. Stafford, protested, accusing the nurse of improperly attending to the sick man.

Words followed, at the crux of which the nurse alleges Mrs. Stafford began pulling Mrs. Smith's hair and scratching her in the face. When she took hold of Mrs. Stafford to protect herself the nurse charges that Mrs. Stafford's husband caught hold of Mrs. Smith and held her arms pinioned while his wife further assailed the nurse.

Unredeemed Greece Promised the Help Of City and State

City and state co-operation in the movement started by the members of the Atlanta Greek colony for the restoration of about two million Greeks, now under Turkish rule, to the mother country at the peace conference, was pledged by Governor Dorsey and Mayor Key at a large and enthusiastic meeting, which was held in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce Tuesday afternoon, the Hellenic Christmas.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting to the effect that justice demands that the Greeks should not be ruled over by an inferior and barbaric people, and will be forwarded immediately to President Wilson, Premier Lloyd-George, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Venizelos, and the United States senate and house of representatives.

Governor's Address.

"One year ago today," said Governor Dorsey, "I had the esteemed honor of addressing this same organization in this same hall, and since that time I have been all over the state, but never have I addressed a more enthusiastic audience, and as governor of this state, I wish to say that with their rare traditions and earnest co-operation in all movements, we feel proud of our Greek-American citizens.

"During the war our Greek-American citizens responded gloriously to the allied cause, fighting side by side with the native Americans and by their efforts have added laurels to the efforts of the allied nations in overcoming the autocracy which attempted to destroy our civilization.

"We know that Greece is great today, and that never again will the allies permit Christians to be ruled by the infamous Mohammedans. However, we have left this matter to the two greatest men in the world who speak the English language, Woodrow Wilson and David Lloyd-George, and the great Grecian statesman, Venizelos, and they will see that all nations get their just demands."

Mayor Key, making his first public appearance since his inauguration at the meeting, said in part:

"I am highly pleased to be present at this meeting and feel that the city is proud of its industrious Greek-American citizens.

"Western civilization will never forget its debt to the old Greeks, who were the forerunners of our civilization today.

Greece Joins Allies.

"For three years of this war Greece was weighed in the balance, but, cautiously guided by the steady hand of Venizelos, they were not found wanting. The Greek heart would not turn against the allies, and Greece took her place beside the allied nations. From an American standpoint we can readily see your position in this matter. As Americans love principles and freedom, you want the land of your ancestors freed from the rule of the Turks, so that the temple of St. Sophia in Constantinople, the pride of eastern civilization and architecture, shall once more be ruled over by the Greek Christians. We, as Americans, will rejoice in the restoration and sovereignty of heroic Greece."

The meeting was presided over by Soterios J. Georgiades and George K. Pefinis, president of the Atlanta Greek colony, who sat on the platform with the governor, the mayor and the head of the Greek church in Atlanta. Mr. Georgiades presided at the meeting and outlined its purpose.

Near the close of the meeting the national anthem was played by a Greek orchestra, which also rendered a number of Grecian compositions.

A telegram was received from the Greek colony at Athens, Ga., indorsing the movement in behalf of their brothers who are now under Turkish rule.

Resolutions Passed.

The resolution adopted at the meeting and forwarded to the president and the leading men of Europe follows:

"We, the American-Greeks of the state of Georgia, U. S. A., assembled in the assembly hall of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce on the 7th day of January, 1919, submit the following resolutions:

"That Greece can only receive justice at the coming peace conference by having returned to her the territories that ethnologically, historically and on the principle of majority of population, language and religions belonging to her.

"That justice demands the fulfillment of the freedom of all the unredeemed Greeks and the accomplishment of their just ambition to be united to their mother country, for which they have been fighting and shedding their blood for about five centuries.

"We submit that right and justice demands that no Greeks superior in civilization, intelligence and universal utility shall be governed in the future by an inferior, intrusive people of barbarian and atrocious inclinations and incapable to rule other nationalities.

"That justice demands the return of Asia Minor, Aegean Islands, Thrace and the northern district of Epirus, including Koritsa, to Greece, the rightful heir."

In the celebration of the Hellenic Christmas Tuesday special services were held at the local Greek church, and the Greek soldiers from Camp Gordon were given a dinner by the Atlanta Greeks at Child's cafe on Broad street, with George K. Pefinis acting as toastmaster.

Thompson in Chicago.

United States Marshal Howard Thompson leaves Wednesday morning for Chicago, where he will stay for about ten days, attending to government business. Deputy Marshal Henry Penland, of Ellijay, was in Atlanta Monday and Tuesday, having come here for a conference with Marshal Thompson.

Dr. John Lawshe Ill.

Dr. John Z. Lawshe, one of the United States deputy marshals, has been ill for several days at his home, 150 West Peachtree street. He is thought to have influenza.

JAMES MORTON.

Ashby Jones, second vice president, and James Morton, secretary and treasurer.

Since the first of last September Mr. Morton has been acting as associate director of the United War Work Campaign and in this capacity was in charge of all the campaign records and was the active assistant of Ely R. Callaway, the state director. The committee on church cooperation loaned Mr. Morton to the United War Work Campaign as their contribution to the campaign, and in so doing the committee felt that they had performed in the latter half of the year a real service, as this act gave the United War Work Campaign the moral support of all the churches of Atlanta, as the Evangelical Ministers' association is composed of all the evangelical denominations of the city.

A committee was appointed to send a brief telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt. The committee on church co-operation has planned a number of undertakings for the present year, and will announce them at the next meeting of the association.

ROYER ELECTED HEAD OF LOCAL HOTEL MEN

Tuesday marked the annual celebration of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, which began with an official meeting for the election of officers in the morning, included a banquet in the evening at the Majestic and a theater party after at the Lyric.

The morning session resulted in the re-election of all the officers who have served the past year. These are: William C. Royer, president; Fred Houser, secretary; H. A. Tisdel, vice president; Lee M. Jordan, attorney.

There were two honor guests at the dinner party Tuesday evening, Mayor James L. Key and E. L. Potter, who is managing director of the Hotel Ansley, president of the Clarendon hotel, Seabreeze, Fla., and the Van Nuys hotel, at Los Angeles. The occasion was the new mayor's first official appearance at a social function.

Other guests were the executive committee of the Atlanta Convention bureau and representatives of the newspapers. The assemblage attended the second performance of the Lyric in a body, seats having been reserved for them.

BODY OF J. W. RANKIN ARRIVES IN ATLANTA

The body of James W. Rankin, 58 years old, who died Monday morning at 6 o'clock in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he had gone for his health, was brought to Atlanta last night. Mr. Rankin had been city salesman for the Oglesby Grocery company for the past twenty-five years and was the oldest salesman in point of service in Atlanta.

Washington, January 7.—Armour & Co., Chicago packers, today were cited to appear before the federal trade commission February 17 to answer a formal complaint that the company has "for the past three years concealed its affiliation with and control of the Farmers' Cooperative Fertilizer company, of Richmond, Va." The complaint alleged that through the concealed control the Richmond concern acquired certain trade which Armour & Co. could not acquire were the facts of the control generally known.

WITNESSES QUIZZED ON CHRISTY KILLING

Developments continue in the mystery of the killing of Carlisle H. Christy by William Albright last week in front of the home of G. C. Febuary, at 21 Mathewson place.

The latest witness to be interrogated in the office of Solicitor John A. Boykin is Mrs. Hattie Barnett, the woman detective, who has been an intimate of Mrs. Febuary for the past eight years or more.

Another witness being hunted by detectives and county investigators is a taxicab driver who is said to have driven the machine in which Christy, Mrs. Febuary and possibly Albright were on a ride a short time prior to the shooting.

Witnesses Quizzed.

A number of witnesses were brought to the solicitor general's office yesterday and quizzed regarding new angles that have developed in the case in the past few days. No intimation would be given of the evidence the woman sleuth divulged during her examination. It is being held for the grand jury, when that body takes up the Christy killing.

Albright remains in prison. No bond has been assessed him. His attorneys are preparing to appeal for bond immediately following action by the grand jury.

Mrs. Barnett has been closely associated with Mrs. Febuary, who was with Christy during the afternoon of the killing, and who had appealed to Albright to protect her against the dead man's alleged annoyances shortly prior to the shooting.

Mrs. Barnett would not disclose the nature of the questions put to her by Boykin's men.

Detectives at Work.

The mystery has assumed such proportions that the pick of men under command of Chief Lamar Poole, of the headquarters detective department, have been put to work on it. They are in charge of Detectives John Campbell and Pat Starnes.

Solicitor Boykin has also put a group of men to work on the killing in command of Plennie Miner, star sleuth of the county staff. A vast amount of evidence, it is said, is being gathered to present to the grand jury Friday, at which time the solicitor proposes to submit the killing.

Mrs. Febuary was questioned by Chief Poole last Sunday when Poole, with other detectives from headquarters, visited the Febuary home for an inspection of the residence and of the scene of the shooting, which occurred outdoors on the sidewalk. It is proposed to summon Mrs. Febuary before Solicitor Boykin, however, sometime between now and the date of the jury meeting.

WOMEN SENTINELS AGAIN ARRESTED

Washington, January 7.—The police put an end to a foot race in Lafayette square tonight between angry crowds of men and three torch-bearing sentinels of the National Woman's party by arresting the women. The prisoners would not furnish bond and were moved to the house of detention to await trial tomorrow in the police court.

After spokesmen of the woman's party had addressed a crowd in front of the white house late in the day, a fire was started and the women burned a copy of a speech delivered in Italy by President Wilson.

Early in the night the women transferred their activities across Pennsylvania avenue to Lafayette square, lighting several fires. This apparently angered the crowds and they set out to extinguish each blaze. As fast as one was put out the torch-bearers ran to another part of the park and started another. This kept up for half an hour, when the police intervened.

"Overseas" Officers Now at Camp Gordon Enjoy Great Frolic

An "overseas officers' frolic" was given to the officers at Camp Gordon who have seen service in France, at the camp Tuesday night. A musical program was held in the Y. W. C. A. from 7:30 to 9 o'clock, after which a big dance was given in the K. of C. hall.

Fully 250 officers of the camp, all of whom have just returned from overseas; about 200 Red Cross nurses and several hundred persons from Atlanta were present at the "frolic." Music was furnished by the combined artillery band of the camp, and the program was staged by the Atlanta War Camp Community service.

Miss Lilla Lyman, accompanied by Miss Florence Niles, sang a number of classical selections, and the community singing was led by Charles P. Morse, song leader of the camp. Excellent readings were rendered by a number of Red Cross nurses, and Ethrington Harrower, of Atlanta, soloist, occupied a large part on the program. General Sage also gave a short talk to the officers.

At 9 o'clock the program in the K. of C. hall began with a big march, led by General Sage, and a number of prize dances were held.

The program was given under the auspices of Charles P. Morse, war department commission on training camp activities and the camp morale department, Major S. C. Black and Lieutenants W. Nelms and A. E. G. McMahon, collaborating with the commanding officers of the "overseas" detachments.

Railroad Commission Upheld in Increased Electric Rate Case

Washington, January 7.—Georgia railroad commission orders permitting the Georgia Public Service corporation of Macon to increase its rate for electric service today were upheld by the supreme court in deciding an appeal resulting from the dismissal of injunction proceedings brought against the corporation by the Union Dry Goods company, which alleged the rates were excessive

The commission four years ago gave the utility corporation of Macon the right to increase rates in electric service to certain consumers. The Union Dry Goods company came under the head of one class of consumer whose rate of electricity was increased. The dry goods concern took the case into court on the grounds that the rates were excessive. They lost in every court, including the superior court of Bibb, the supreme court of Georgia and now the supreme court of the United States.

MEANS GERMAN AGENT, BUT NOT DURING WAR

Washington, January 7.—Gaston B. Means, formerly an operative of a detective agency, gave the senate committee investigating German propaganda a detailed account today of his connection with the German government. After refusing an offer by Captain Boy-Ed, a former naval attache, to purchase supplies for raiders off the American coast, Means testified he had accepted employment as a German agent at $100 a day, but that his relations ceased before the United States entered the war.

In denying a statement by A. Bruce Bielaski that he was a German agent while a defendant in a murder trial at Concord, N. C., in the fall of 1917, Means said as soon as he obtained information as to German activities he reported it to the authorities.

Means told the committee he had knowledge concerning important papers which formerly belonged to Boy-Ed and which the department of justice had not obtained. He explained in executive session where these might be found, saying the government should have them.

REPUBLICANS OPPOSE FOOD RELIEF MEASURE

Washington, January 7.—Republican opposition to the $100,000,000 appropriation requested by President Wilson for European relief was manifested today in both branches of congress. In the house Representative Moore, of Pennsylvania, blocked consideration of a bill carrying the appropriation by refusing unanimous consent to take it up either today or Thursday. Chairman Sherley, of the appropriations committee, said he would seek a special rule to get action Thursday.

Senators Borah and Smoot announced in the senate that they would oppose the measure unless more information regarding plans for the use of the money was forthcoming.

MIGRATORY BIRD LAW IS DECLARED INVALID

Washington, January 7.—The federal migratory bird law of 1913, under which the government for the first time exerted authority over prescribed "closed seasons" for wild birds which habitually migrate from state to state, with the varying seasons, was in effect declared invalid today by the supreme court, which dismissed the government's motion on appeal from a decision of the Arkansas federal district court, holding the statute unconstitutional.

New Alcoholic Elixir, Called Aspironal, Medicated With Latest Scientific Remedies Used and Endorsed by European and American Army Surgeons to Cut Short a Cold and Prevent Complications.

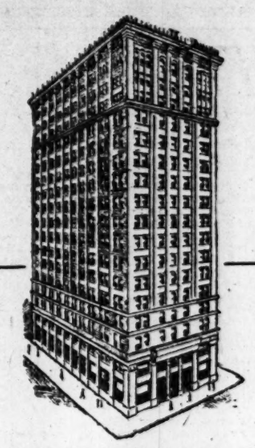

Every Druggist in U. S. Instructed to Refund Price While You Wait at Counter, If Relief Does Not Come Within Two Minutes.

Delightful Taste, Immediate Relief, Quick Warm-Up.

The sensation of the year in the drug trade is Aspironal, the Two-Minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the Laboratories: tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the common people as ten times as quick and effective as whisky, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough cure they have ever tried.

All drug stores are now supplied with the wonderful new elixir, so all you have to do, to get rid of that cold, is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you a teaspoonful with four teaspoonfuls of water in a glass. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow, and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

When your cold or cough is relieved, take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and babies, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and most agreeable cold and cough remedy for infants and children. Do not be afraid of its alcoholic contents, for it contains no more than any good doctor would prescribe for a cold, cough or the flu.—(adv.)

What About Your Income Tax?

¶ We suggest that the sensible way to finance your income tax is to regard it as a fixed monthly overhead, to be met the same as rent, clothing and heating bills.

¶ Just as sure as you wait until the last minute you will pinch yourself, and just at a time when there may be many demands upon your pocketbook.

¶ Make a generous guess as to how much your tax will be for the current year, divide that amount by twelve, and deposit this sum religiously on the first of every month in a Savings Account.

¶ Our word for it—you will not be sorry when "pay day" comes.

Deposits made on or before January 10th will draw interest from January 1st.

Off for the New Year

A good resolution is one in which you promise yourself—and your home community—to do all you reasonably can to promote the growth and prosperity of home concerns. This course is more than justified by the fact that your neighbors—your friends—thousands of them—are employed in home manufacturing plants, and in buying the products of those plants you are helping those same neighbors and friends. You are keeping your money at home to aid in the development of your immediate community—and you are getting just as good products as if you sent your money away off yonder where it can be of no material benefit to your immediate section.

The manufacturers below would appreciate it if you would bear these things in mind—and put into practice this suggestion for the coming year.

IN THE REALM OF WOMAN'S AFFAIRS

SOCIETY

Mrs. Isaac Liebman Starts Gymnasium Fund For Gordon.

The "Leila K. Liebman Gymnasium Fund for Convalescent Soldiers" has been started at Camp Gordon through the generous gift of a public spirited Atlanta woman.

Mrs. Isaac Liebman, whose war charities have been most comprehensive ever since the beginning of hostilities, learned of the value which gymnasium equipment would mean toward the restoration to normal strength of the wounded men brought to Camp Gordon from France, and immediately mailed her check for $250 as a nucleus for the purchase of necessary materials to Col. Frank Thomas Woodbury, camp surgeon.

Another gift of Mrs. Liebman's toward war work was the ambulance she presented to Atlanta chapter, Red Cross, last summer.

Colonel Woodbury, in acknowledging the donation for the gymnasium fund, asked the privilege of naming the fund for the first donor, and states that "the fund will be applied only to the purchase of such materials and equipment as will be of direct use, as well as amusement, in the training of the convalescent soldiers to the greatest maximum physical efficiency before being discharged.

"We expect to have an extremely interesting center at Camp Gordon," Colonel Woodbury predicts in this connection, "and have outlined quite a large course of instruction and physical reconstruction. There are now 250 convalescent soldiers from overseas at camp, and many more are on the way."

A second check was received by Colonel Woodbury on Tuesday for the same fund, $100 from Jacob Elsas.

Music Study Club Program for Today.

The Schumann-Browning-Rosetti program, which is to be given by the Music Study club this morning at Egleston Memorial hall, beginning at 11 o'clock, will be warmly greeted by a large audience of music lovers.

Mrs. Armond Carroll, the club president, is chairman of the program, and she will have the assistance of Miss Viola Gaines, contralto; Miss Frances Stovall, pianist; Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson, reader, and Miss Madeleine Keipp, art lecturer.

Miss Gaines will be heard to excellent advantage in a Schumann song group, among which will be "He More Mighty Than the Noblest." Mrs. Hutchinson will read a number of Browning's poems, and Miss Keipp will have the assistance of some finely colored stereopticon slides for her discussion of the pictures of Rosetti.

Of unusual interest will be the opening of the program with the singing of "America," by the entire audience, led by the new community song leader of the War Camp Community Service, Ben J. Potter.

The program will begin promptly at 11, and will last for an hour and fifteen minutes. Mrs. Ewell Gay, chairman of the membership committee, and Mrs. Harry Hermance, co-chairman, will be at the hall half an hour before the program starts to receive applications for membership and to issue cards for admission to the program. JUNIORS TO STUDY IN HOME NURSING

The Junior Red Cross will have training in first aid and home nursing during the month of January. The war has taught the world the necessity for perfecting and improving the health of our people and the many emergencies that arise in our daily life ha e further emphasized the necessity in such cases of a knowledge of "what to do" that will be almost automatic and instinctive. Such knowledge is seldom acquired in its most effective form after middle life, hence such training when given during the formative years of youth is absolutely invaluable. The Red Cross is most anxious that the high schools of the country establish these classes during the second semester of the school year, for the knowledge acquired through them is of incalculable value. For boys to know what to do when the need arises is infinitely more important than all the willingness and eagerness to serve which may be displayed by an adult, and it is this knowledge that the Red Cross will give.

To girls the knowledge of home nursing, sanitary housekeeping, proper care of the infant and scientific feeding of the family will be offered by the classes held by the Junior Red Cross this month.

Teachers desiring fuller information regarding this work may secure it by applying to their chapter school committees, as the Red Cross has issued pamphlets furnishing all possible data on the subject. Certificates of proficiency will be given to all who take these courses and the educational value of this work cannot be overestimated.

The Junior Red Cross has already in preparation a program for future work, which will embrace a full line of activities incident to the daily life of the nation.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs.

This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

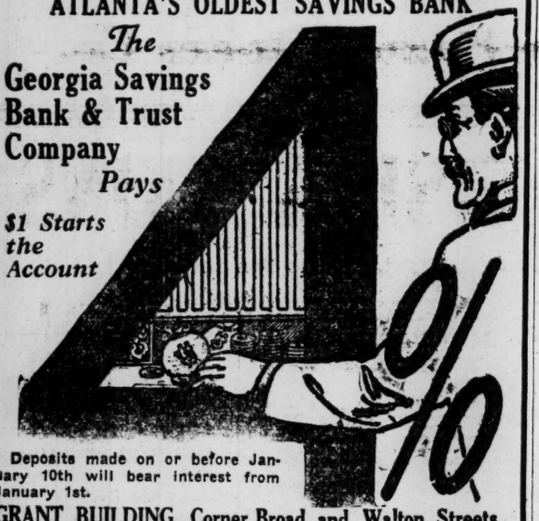

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is inclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a swallow of water. Little Things Every Woman Should Know How to Do

By Isma Dooly.

There are some things which every woman should know how to do, not only because she ought to, and because they are what might be called "womanly things," but from the standpoint of her own self-protection and the protection of the home in which she is.

No matter what may be her tastes, talents or inclinations, being a woman there are times when she is going to find herself at a great disadvantage if she does not know something about cooking, something about the use of a needle and something about the care of the sick. And this knowledge of the commonsense things is just as much needed by the woman in the luxurious home as by the woman in the simpler home.

It is a waste of good time and space to argue about the importance of every woman knowing how to cook. She need not learn it as a science, nor even as an art; but she should know enough about it to keep the family together in case the cook is sick and the family have to be provided for. The woman must under these circumstances do the cooking, and economy as well as comfort suggest the advisability of her learning to do it well. The woman of means, as well as the one less fortunate, may find herself without a cook, and her husband and her children, if she has any, are dependent upon her to prepare the meals they eat until someone is secured for the job. Certainly the man, no matter how loving and self-sacrificing he may be, can not be expected to do it in the emergency, if the woman is able to do it.

Word to Health Board.

The head of the state board of health, when called upon by the organized women of Georgia not long ago, to know how they could best help out in the program of public health, told them to start a campaign for good cooking in Georgia. Ignorance of cooking, they were told, produced more chronic complaints and more invalidism than almost any other cause. He told how the lives of many little children are sacrificed because women do not know how to prepare the proper food for them.

A speaker at a recent conference of women, when the necessity for all women to be taught to cook was discussed, told in pitiful strain the kind of cooking hard working men are subjected to in rural communities, small hotels, and the average boarding house in any community. There is no lack of food, this man stated, but it is the untempting way in which food is prepared and the ignorance of women in this direction.

Home Nursing.

As necessary as a knowledge of cooking is in the equipment of women, so is a certain knowledge of the care of the sick; this fact stressed the country over, during the recent flu epidemic, the continuance of this epidemic and other conditions which have threatened the good health of the country during and since the war. In many cases in well-to-do families where nurses might have been afforded, but could not be secured because of their scarcity and the great demand for them, physicians were reduced to the greatest extremity because of the ignorance of people in a sick room.

A woman again finds this logically one of her essential obligations, and it is expedient that she should post herself in this direction. The mother spirit in her should prompt her to desire to help any helpless one, whether it is adult or child, and a woman who is helpless to aid in a sick room certainly is in a position of utter uselessness. Therefore, the great advantage there is now in all women taking advantage of an opportunity to learn the first and practical principles of home nursing.

At one of Atlanta's institutions during the flu epidemics, when children, matron and nurses were sick, groups of Atlanta women who had studied in the Red Cross classes in home nursing went into the institution, nursed and looked after the children, and saved their lives.

All women should be thus equipped to save the lives of people in emergencies not only in their own homes, but in the home of the community where the need is.

About the stitch in time saving nine, everybody knows the philosophy of that, and nothing makes a woman appear more unworthy, more useless than not to be able to keep her own person in order, or that of her husband or family, or those in any way dependent upon her in that direction.

Common Sense Program.

So, in this program of reconstruction, the plans which will be made for the better equipment of women in the more practical ways, let the program include the common-sense things every woman should know, whether she is rich or poor. The question is not so much whether a girl should go away to school or should go to college, study to be an artist or equip herself for a profession. Those are all the things that come with choice, but let the new program be sure to include a department of knowledge which will assure every girl becoming a common-sense individual, equipped to be first and foremost a self-respecting person, equipped to the practical everyday things of life.

And So They Were Married

Episode One—(Intolerance).

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR.

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

CHAPTER II.

Marriage is not a sinecure; above all modern marriage. There are too many problems to be solved, too many adjustments to be made, too many foolish little illusions to be smashed, too many battles to be fought, not necessarily with each other, but each with his or her own character.

Love, if there is enough of it, helps to weather everything. That is, where both young people possess an average amount of common sense. Many marriages where there existed an abundance of love in the beginning later went on the rocks because of a woeful lack of common sense. There are many heartaches in store for the unwary, the couples who marry and who expect things to instantly adjust themselves. As though it were possible for two young people from different families, with different traditions, perhaps, and very likely with different ideas about a great many things, planning to live together in the same house, to see each other across the table three times a day, to live, in short, intimately, and not to have misunderstandings.

After all, it is necessary to live and by living is meant not a steady continuing of the politeness, the special consideration that exists during the courtship period and for the first few weeks after marriage; living means a relapse into the manner of living that one has always enjoyed, and where this is not possible there is going to be a clash that must be finally settled for good and all. Where there is love, this clash will be settled fairly, amicably and with common sense, and the young couple will unconsciously pass on to the others after which there is little domestic discord, but there are at least five years that must be lived through before this period arrives.

There are so many little things that a bride thinks necessary to hide from her husband during the first weeks of their life together. A taste, perhaps, that his choice in ties offends, an objection to certain of his customs that she hesitates to speak of and mentally decides to reserve until she knows him better. And on his side there are also reservations, a kindly desire not to hurt her by telling her that he does not care for certain dishes or for the new way she has of dressing her hair. These foolish little things are stored away with other more important ones and then some time when perhaps one or the other of the couple happens to be overwrought or tired, everything comes out at once, and there is the first misunderstanding staring them in the eyes, the very first; and, just think, they had resolved never to have any at all.

All this is what happens in ordinary times to any married couples; but when Scott Raymond was invalided home from the war and realized finally that the girl he had always loved had at last discovered that she loved him and not any one else, and they had decided to be married, there were all the ordinary problems to be settled between them, plus some extraordinary ones that also had to be considered.

No average girl at the marriageable age is able to foresee what is going to happen in her own particular case. She imagines, of course, that her marriage is going to be different from any other, that her problems are peculiar to herself alone, and that of course no one can help her to give her any advice, because no one understands the situation. Ruth Rowland had nearly made a fatal mistake which would have affected her whole life, the mistake of marrying the wrong man, and her love for Scott Raymond was therefore more intense than it would have been otherwise. But Ruth was nevertheless just an ordinary girl, although she had profited by a few of her own mistakes. Her temperament, too, was unusual, for she was emotional in the extreme. Scott himself was all passion, all desire, all ambition to do things. Then, too, he had lived in the trenches for nearly seven months, a wild kind of existence that has nothing in it of the peaceful sheltered life at home. And without stopping to think of all these things, Scott was hurrying into marriage, always a precarious state at best. He wanted Ruth, he had always wanted her, his first kisses when he had returned to her and had found her as eager for them as he was to give them had fired his eager blood with longing. They had waited too long, anyway, there was no need of waiting any longer. When does youth wait, anyway, if it is sure it wants something and sees the way clear to getting it?

Scott had gone through a grilling experience in France, his life had been despaired of for a long time, a wound in the back when he had crept over into No Man's Land for listening post duty had kept him in the hospital for weeks, and now that he was home again he wanted everything that went with home life. And Ruth wanted to give him that home life. Just now she cared more about being Scott's wife than she did about anything else. She was willing to sink her own entity in his. She simply did not reason at all, nor think ahead further than the ceremony that was to change everything for her forever. Whether she was to like that change did not matter, either. Of course things would be strangely new, but there was love enough to carry her through anything.

And now on her wedding day she realized, for the first time, the fact that she did not really know herself and her own feelings. It gave her a queer and uncharted feeling that was almost uncanny.

LYERLY INFLUENZA SITUATION SERIOUS

Lyerly, Ga., January 7.—(Special.) The first death as a direct result of the Spanish influenza occurred Saturday near Lyerly out of the more than two hundred cases having appeared in the Lyerly section since it first made its appearance. The whole family has been down with the disease and the little girl contracted pneumonia. The funeral and interment occurred Monday.

The Lyerly influenza situation, for the third time, is regarded as serious and unless changes occur within the next few days the Lyerly school will be forced to suspend for the third time. The disease that has been prevalent here is not of a violent type, the little Jackson child being the first fatality in this community.

THE HOPE CHEST

The Hope Chest.

CHAPTER ONE.

As everybody knows, the girls employed by Ballantine and Hoyt in their great chain of candy stores are distinguished for their good looks. This was a hobby of Roger Ballantine, founder of the firm, and he was said to ride it nearly as hard as the hobby-riding king who collected giant soldiers. Certainly the local managers were careful in their recruiting. Those in college towns and watering places had to be particularly alert, and the expert in charge of "The B & H Sweetshop" in Atlantic City therefore paid Sheila Moore a magnificent tribute when he remarked that she was the prettiest girl who ever handed a box of chocolates across his counters.

But Tom Ballantine went even farther. In his opinion she outclassed the entire "B & H" cohorts. He knew. He had seen them all. During the summer now gliding swiftly into autumn he had inspected every link in the chain of sweetshops. It was his father's idea of a vacation. He himself made the grand tour of his branches when he felt the need of change. Young Ballantine would have chosen another form of relaxation from the labors of his Harvard year, but on the whole the pilgrimage had not been tedious. Instructed to show him everything, most of the local managers had broadly interpreted this to include the town, and, till he reached Atlantic City, his studies were varied. He then decided it was time to specialize. It was the candy business he had in mind, but his specialty turned out to be Sheila Moore.

On a certain forenoon in September, which had dawned deceptively bright, Sheila darkened the day for the manager by telephoning her resignation. It seemed that she was going away. She hated to leave him in the lurch, she said, but something—oh, very important—had come up suddenly, and she hoped he'd understand. He did not. Young Mr. Ballantine, sauntering in shortly after, listened to the news with every mark of sympathy. He agreed that her loss was a disaster of the first magnitude and voiced his regret that he could not help to pick her successor. But it appeared that he also was leaving town. It was a personal matter which no one could attend to but himself. He then took the local manager out to lunch and strove to raise his spirits. They had broiled lobster and other things.

Sheila lunched on a cheese sandwich and a lemon phosphate at the soda fountain nearest her hall bedroom and returned without a pang of indigestion to her packing. She was only eighteen. But if her body was at peace, her mind obviously was not, and, kneeling before her trunk, her hands would every now and then fall idle and her eyes go questing into far spaces. The packing at an end, she put on a suit of dark blue serge and a quiet little hat with a jaunty little quill and issued, a gloriously youthful and vividly pretty figure, into a street which led through shabbiness to splendor on its way to the sea. The nearer she drew to the board walk, the more laggard became her step, and the rolling chair fraternity made confident bids for her patronage. Once on the promenade, however, she gripped her courage afresh and walked briskly till she reached the entrance of a theater which the billboards asserted was the home of supreme motion pictures and refined vaudeville.

Violent posters of the silent drama and framed photographs of the week's vaudeville flanked the shallow lobby, and, after a glance at a pier clock, Sheila drifted to an easel dedicated to the renown of one Lew Pam and his Six Rosebuds. The faces of the "buds" were ingeniously set about with petals. All were comely, and two might have met the exacting test of Ballantine and Hoyt. The features of Mr. Pam were nearly lost in the stock disguise of the German comedian, but he had a whimsical eye that was not in the least Teutonic. He looked directly out of the photograph, and Sheila, with her lovely color heightened, gave him gaze for gaze. So rapt was she in her musing, she took no heed of the original till he touched her arm.

"What's wrong, Sheila?" he asked.

She started and flushed a still livelier pink.

"I was just going to ask when your act came on," she explained, breathlessly.

"Not for an hour," he said. "But how did you break away from work? You don't look sick."

"I'm not sick."

"Sacked?"

"No, no. And nothing is really wrong. But I couldn't wait for you to look me up. You see I—but we can't talk here."

He nodded and led the way down a flight of steps to the beach and they dropped in the sand underneath a pier. Without his grotesque make-up, he showed for a clean-shaven man of the late forties, with the grave lines which in the general irony of things tend to sadden the face of the jester. Side by side with him, one readily saw where the girl got her blue-gray eyes. Hers, too, were whimsical.

"Out with it now," he commanded in mock sternness.

Sheila tried to smile.

"Daddy Joe—" she began and ended.

"Take your time if it's so serious," he said, reaching for her hand.

Her look fluttered seaward and then came darting round to meet his.

"I'm married," she announced.

His fingers closed over hers in a grip that made her wince.

"Married!" he repeated dully. "Did I get that straight?"

"Yes," she said with what voice she could muster. "It's true, Daddy Joe. I was married this morning."

"You—my little Sheila!" Then, turning an angry red, "Who is the damned sneak?" he demanded. "Where is he?"

She snatched her hand away.

"You shan't call my husband names," she declared. "He isn't a sneak. He's a gentleman. I won't let anybody run him down—anybody! He's my husband."

He blinked at her fiery championship.

"If he's on the level, as you say, why didn't he wait for me to get here?"

"He didn't know—"

"You knew, I wrote you a month ago that I was booked here. And you must have seen the ads. It couldn't have gone out of your head that I was due today."

"No," she admitted. "I didn't forget."

"And yet you went straight head!"

"I was afraid you'd try to stop me."

"Do you call that giving me a square deal?"

"No." She shook her head. "But I didn't dare take the risk. I can't live without Tom. Don't you understand? Of course you do. You ran off with mother."

"That was because her gov'ner couldn't get it through his thick head that I—that we—" He caught himself up and smiled.

"You see!" She moved closer and snuggled their reunited hands into the soft sand.

"I see," he said. "What is Friend Husband's other name?"

"Ballantine."

New York, January 7.—An irregular opening was followed by a very sharp recovery in the cotton market today, with March contracts selling up from 26.45 to 27.20, or 69 points net higher. The general list closed barely steady at a net advance of 25 to 65 points.

The market opened at a decline of 16 points to an advance of 25 points with near months relatively easy under a renewal of the liquidation responsible for the sharp break of yesterday and in response to weak cables. The decline in Liverpool was attributed to the improving import prospects and reduced costs of importation, however, and houses with Liverpool connections were good buyers here. This stimulated covering for over the holiday tomorrow and also appeared to attract some fresh buying for trade and long account, which gave the market a very firm tone during the middle of the day. January contracts advanced from 27.89 to 28.70 and May from 25.40 to 26.20, with old crop months selling 64 to 75 points net higher, while October showed a net advance of 89 points. There was enough realizing at this level to cause reactions in the lat trading, although there was no change in the general character of the news so far as indicated by the talk around the ring.

One of the private cables from Liverpool said the market had been sold on the February freight allotment equivalent to 275,000 bales, and another said it was expected that the ocean freight rates would stabilize around $3.50 compared with the present rate of $4.50.

According to private advices southern spot holders have not followed the decline in futures, and a more bullish view of the spot situation seemed to be developing on the advance.

CENT A POUND RISE IN NEW ORLEANS COTTON

New Orleans, January 7.—Following a decline on the opening today the price of cotton rose strongly, the trading months advancing a cent a pound from the lowest levels. Technical conditions were generally given on the floor as the reason for the improvement in value, the market acting both sold out and oversold. The initial decline amounted to 29 to 32 points. This was recovered and replaced by a net rise which finally amounted to 67 to 73 points.

In the afternoon small recession from the high occurred and last prices showed net gains for the day of 38 to 43 points

The early selling was in sympathy with poor cables and, in addition, the bear element quite plainly sought to carry the reaction to greater length. When shorts tried to take profits they found little cotton for sale and the market firmed up rapidly, although during a good part of the session buying was only moderate in volume, bullish traders being made cautious by the holiday tomorrow and the census bureau report on ginning the first thing Thursday morning.

Rumors of further probable reductions in ocean freight rates were an aid to the advance, as were also reports from the interior that spots were as tightly held as ever.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, January 7.—(Special.)—There was considerable recovering of contracts before the holiday. The domestic trade bought and there was buying to reverse straddles for Liverpool, which caused a higher market today on the advance to 27¼ cents for March. The south became a seller. This, together with some realizing, brought about a small reaction. Spot holders continue firm and offerings from that source are to be had only on strong markets.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, January 7.—(Special.)—Cables were sharply lower this morning, reflecting both the reduction in freight rates and also the uncertain political situation in central Europe, which is, of course, closer to the English market than to our own. Here, the market met covering orders at the opening and failed to respond to the weakness abroad. There was rather less hedge-selling from the south and considerable March was bought by the French commission fixing prices for merchants in the south. This demand held the markets steady through most of the session, although outside business was small. The New York and New Orleans markets are closed tomorrow, Wednesday, in celebration of the battle of New Orleans in the war of 1812.

Coffee.

New York, January 7.—There was a firmer tone in coffee futures market today. A special cable reporting a decline of 575 to 675 reis in the futures market at Santos was followed by slight reactions about noon, but there was a good demand from shorts and houses with European connections, and closing prices were at about the best point of the day. The market opened unchanged to 5 points and sold up to 14.65 for May and 14..40 for September, with the close showing a net advance of 10 to 29 points. May, 14.64; July, 14.50; September, 14.36; October, 14.25; December, 14.14.

The local spot market was nominally unchanged at 16¾ for Rio 7s and 22@22¼ for Santos 4s. A further decline of about 20 points was reported in the cost and freight market and a small lot of Santos 4s were reported sold at 20.00 steamer shipment. London credits.

Owing to the holiday yesterday, there were no official cables from Brazil.

FRESH ADVANCES ARE MADE BY CORN; FEWER ARRIVALS

Chicago, January 7.—Sharp fresh advances in the corn market took place today, owing to relative scarcity of arrivals, but the grains were partly offset later by erroneous gossip that permits would be issued for the importation of corn from Argentina. Prices closed nervous, ¾c to 3c net higher with January $1.47⅞ and May $1.40¾ to $1.40½.

Oats finished ⅛c to ⅝c up and provisions off 2c to 50c.

Decided strength which developed in corn as soon as the market opened was plainly due to the fact that the crop movement continued to be much more liberal than had been expected. Active demand from shorts quickly forced values to a new high level for the season. Assertions, however, that the war trade board had ruled that Argentine corn was now unrestricted and might be licensed freely brought about a sharp reaction. Subsequently, however, the market rallied somewhat on denials that licenses for Argentine imports had been approved by the food administration.

Oats merely reflected the changes in corn.

Provisions were weak with hogs.

PUBLIC INTEREST IN STOCKS AGAIN AT VERY LOW EBB

New York, January 7.—Uncertainty characterized the early and intermediate stages of today's dull session on the stock exchange, a partial hardening of prices developing toward the close.

There was again an utter lack of public interest, rails and investment shares as a whole giving way to issues of the several speculative groups, notably oils, food stocks, tobaccos and inactive equipments, such as Harvester, Hide and Leather and secondary motors.

Some of the better known and more desirable transportations were not quoted at all and leaders in the transcontinental and coal divisions appeared only occasionally on the tickers.

Typical of the market's unstable character was the movement in Mexican Petroleum. That stock registered an advance of 4 points during the forenoon, but reacted an extreme of 5 points in the last hour.

Other oils rose more moderately, but relinquished their gains for the most part, California Petroleum common and preferred holding better than the rest. Tobaccos and motors succumbed to realizing for profits, shippings also easing.

Rallies of 1 to 4 were made by local utilities, Interborough Consolidated and Brooklyn Transit strengthening, probably as a result of the proposed financial plans outlined by the receiver of the last named company.

Call loans ranged between 4½ and 4 per cent, dropping later to 3¾, the lowest rate thus far this year, but time funds held firm.

Liberty bonds ruled at their recent best levels, but the general bond list, including International, was irregular. Total sales, par value, aggregated $13,875,000.

Old United States bonds were unchanged on call.

SPORTS

BY DICK JEMISON.

CAMP JESSUP FIVE TO PLAY THE CLUB

Teams Clash on Atlanta Athletic Club Floor on Auburn Avenue Tonight at 8:30.

Camp Jessup's basketball team will make its initial appearance in the world of sports when it meets the Atlanta Athletic club team tonight in the club gymnasium.

The Jessup team was organized two weeks ago and has had very little practice, but it is made up of men who have been well seasoned in the university leagues and it is believed by the sportsmen of the camp that the Atlanta team is going to have to show some good mettle to defeat them.

The game is arousing much interest among the men at the camp and a large delegation of men and officers will be among the fans to back up the new team.

The Jessup line-up for the game is as follows:

Kuhn, forward; Orlando, forward; Thompson, center; Anderson, guard; Hartman, guard; Quinlivan, guard; Sherman, guard.

The substitutes are Tull Alyard, Esterson, Smith, Roddenburry, Vellines.

"SCRAPPY" HILL, PLAINSMAN STAR, DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Montgomery, Ala., January 7.—Information was received by relatives today from the war department of the death on Christmas day in France of Lieutenant Armstrong ("Scrappy") Hill, due to pneumonia. When United States congress adopted the war declaration against Germany, Lieutenant Hill, then chief of the sanitary forces of this city, offered his services and was sent to an officers' school, where he was commissioned. Earlier he had graduated from Auburn Polytechnic institute, where his name went down in the football annals of that institution.

PIEDMONT COLLEGE FIVE WILL BE STRONG

Demorest, Ga., January 7.—(Special.)—The North Georgia college will have a strong basketball team this year with the return of Hawthorne and Adams. The former returned to college after a discharge from the navy. He has played guard for three seasons and is one of the best in the state. The latter returns after a hitch in the aviation corps. He has held down a forward position for two seasons. Bill should be able to put more "English" on than ever this year after six months in England.

Captain Gillespie, another old man, is back also, and is a real star at center. With these three old men back and Mallie, Ray, Simpton and Myrick, of last year's recruits, to pick from, Piedmont should have a splendid team this year under the careful coaching of Coach Bast.

Piedmont has several open dates on her schedule yet and would be glad to arrange games with any strong team in the state, both at home and abroad. Games can be arranged for by writing E. D. Adams, business manager.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS MEET NEXT SUMMER

International tennis competition next summer is predicted in the report that the All-England club has applied for sanction to hold the championship at Wimbledon. This event was abandoned during the war and plans for its revival show that English tennis players are preparing to resume activity.

The executive committee will recommend to the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis association on February 7 that arrangements be undertaken to re-establish the Davis cup contests in 1920. The English championship of the coming season will have something of an international flavor, however, for in describing the plans the London Field says that players representing the allies are expected to take part.

JOHN REYNOLDS DIED OF WOUNDS IN FRANCE

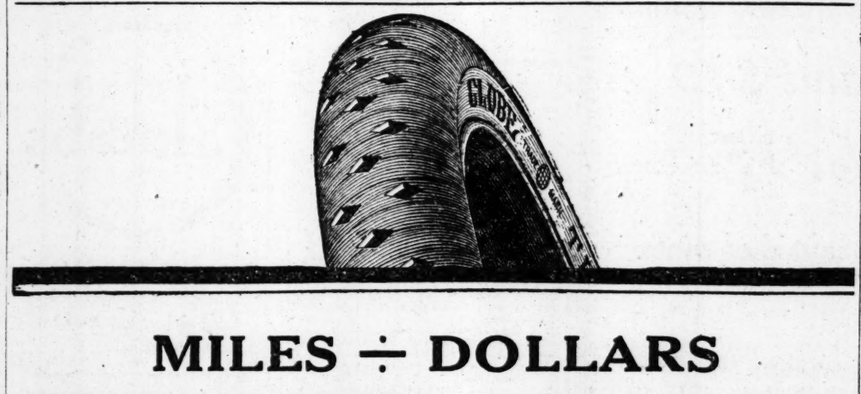

Columbia, S. C., January 7.—The war department officially reported today that First Lieutenant John S. Reynolds, Thirtieth infantry, died in France on October 10 of wounds received in action. When he entered the second officers' training camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Lieutenant Reynolds was news editor of The State and had served on the staff of the newspaper for ten years. He was secretary of the Atlantic Coast circuit association of the Associated Press. He was 31 years of age, and is survived by his widow and an infant daughter, born after his death. No word has been received from him since early in October, and recently letters from overseas had told of rumors that he had died, but today's advices are the first official tidings of his death.

WICKERSHAM IS SEATED AS ALASKAN DELEGATE

Washington, January 7.—By a vote of 204 to 64, the house today adopted the election committee's report seating James Wickersham, republican, as Alaskan delegate in place of Charles A. Sulzer, democrat.

MAJORS' SCHEDULES GOES OVER TO TODAY

Cincinnati, Ohio, January 7.—After laboring all day with the playing schedules of the National and American leagues for the season of 1919, the joint schedule committee of the two major organizations meeting here laid aside its work tonight and will again take up that matter tomorrow.

MILES ÷ DOLLARS

In purchasing automobile tires, it is well to count the dollars you pay for them; but the most important part of the transaction is the miles you get from them

Do you always count the miles? And when you have counted them, do you figure how many miles per dollar your tires have given you?

Intelligent motorists, who aim to get the most miles per dollar, have found the Globe hand-made, wrapped-tread tire to be "the best buy."

ATLANTA PLANNING TO HONOR HEROES

upon the form the monument should take. J. B. Nevin spoke of a triumphal arch as a monument Clark Howell spoke of memorial art gallery, mentioning gifts which had been made to such a project.

It was the consensus of opinion that the memorial committee should be inclusive of all elements and sections of the city and county, and that to a committee of these the form of the monument should be left.

On motion of Mr. Howell it was left to Mrs. Slaton, the chairman of the temporary committee, to appoint a committee of 100 to organize permanently in the interest of the monument and to formulate plans for its establishment.

This committee will be appointed and announced in a few days.

"PERSHING PARK" TO BE MEMORIAL FOR FULTON BOYS

The triangular lot standing in the northern junction of the Peachtrees, which was donated to the city for park purposes by Judge Spencer Atkinson, E. W. Born, Mrs. Lena Swift Huntley, Mrs. Richard Johnston, Hugh Willet, Marion Jackson and M. F. Lively, and which, on the motion of Major D. F. McClatchey, was named "Pershing Park," will be made a memorial park for the Fulton county boys whose lives were sacrificed in the war against Germany, and city council will be asked by the commission to donate $1,200 to be used in beautifying the plot.

Permission was granted to the War Mothers Tuesday afternoon by the park board to use the above lot, and in addition to the setting of a tree for each fallen soldier, the War Mothers are planning to set a tablet for each boy, on which will be marked in bronze his name and his regimental identification.

This permission was granted after Mrs. Eugenia Oberdorfer, chairman; Mrs. Howard McCall, Mrs. B. D. Grey, Mrs. Floyd McRae and Mrs. Sam Jones, president of the organization, had appeared before the commission presenting resolutions passed by the War Mothers, of Fulton county, asking this right.

Their plea was placed before the commission by Councilman A. J. Orme, who spoke eloquently of the work they have attempted.

RAIL SECRETARY IN THE CABINET

tures of the railroad proposal include federal incorporation of all railroad companies, federal control of railroad security issues and establishment of a federal wage board to investigate wage and employment disputes.

Commission's Proposals.

In the event of adoption by congress of the policy of private ownership and operation under government regulation, the interstate commerce commission proposed eight subjects for legislative consideration:

Removal of some of the present limitations on united or co-operative activities among rail and water carriers; emancipation of railway operation from financial dictation; government regulation of security issues; establishment of new relations between federal and state authorities to eliminate the existing "twilight zone" of jurisdiction; restrictions governing the treatment of competitive as compared with non-competitive traffic; efficient utilization and pooled purchases of cars and locomotives; more liberal and common use of terminal facilities, and limitations within which common carrier facilities and service may be furnished by shippers or receivers of freight.

Regardless of what line of policy is followed by congress in determining the future of railroads, the commission statement said, there should be legislative provision for prompt merger, without friction, of railroads in time of war or other emergency, and also limited merger "to such extent as may be necessary to the general public interest" under government supervision; limitation of railway construction to public necessity and enforcement of adequate construction within these limits, and development of inland waterways and their co-ordination with rail systems.

Director General McAdoo's ideas for extension of government management until January 1, 1924, were embodied in bills introduced in the house today by Chairman Sims, of the interstate commerce committee. They proposed increases of the railroad administration's revolving fund by another half billion dollars.

An oil well being driven in West Virginia has been drilled to a depth of 7,363 feet, and is now the deepest in the world.

BOLSHEVIKI AIDING REVOLT IN BERLIN

Joffe and M. Radek, leaders of the Bolshevik mission to Germany, are in Berling assisting Dr. Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg in formenting a Bolshevik revolution. According to advices received here, they are believed to be at the police headquarters, which is the stronghold of the Spartacans.

The independent socialists, whose leaders were recently dismissed from the government, are reported to have gone over entirely to the Spartacans. These two groups have issued a joint proclamation declaring that the final fight to preserve the revolution must now be fought.

SOME OF THE CITY IN ARMED REVOLT.

Berlin, January 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Spartacus group is engaged today in a big demonstration against the government. Tens of thousands of followers of Dr. Karl Liebknecht have been parading in Unter den Linden and the Brandenbergerstrasse, and as this dispatch is filed are returning along Unter den Linden. Up to this time no shots have been fired.

The Wilhelmstrasse from Unter den Linden to below the Leipsigstrasse is packed full of government sympathizers who have been standing there for two hours. It appears to be the government's strategy to prevent the Spartacus demonstration before the government offices.

Hundreds of youths and other civilians in the Spartacan ranks are carrying rifles. Fist fighting has occurred at the corner of the Wilhelmstrasse and the Unter den Linden, where the Bolshevik demonstrators took away their opponents' standards. Spartacan soldiers took a stand in open order in front of the Hotel Adlon with their rifles ready, but there was no firing.

The Spartacan marchers, with the exception of the workmen from certain factories, comprise the scum of the city and four-fifths of the whole number are bedraggled women and young girls.

The American flag has been hoisted over the Hotel Adlon, where the American officers belonging to the prisoners and to the food commission are living.

The opinion seems general that only a miracle can prevent bloodletting before the end of the day.

PLANS FOR LEAGUE ARE TAKING SHAPE

ternational trusteeship whereby the various larger nations having a developed and stable civilization will act as trustees for the society of nations in fostering the progress and development of undeveloped communities.

Permanent Seat as Versailles.

It is recognized that the league of nations will have to have some established and permanent seat for its extensive international work and the gradual conviction is taking form that this seat will be Versailles.

The decision as to this, however, must be the natural outgrowth of the peace conference.

Reports that the working organizations might be located in Holland or Belgium are declared to be incorrect as it is pointed out that the present war went on despite The Hague convention and the peace organizations at The Hague, Berne and other places.

Versailles, on the contrary, is felt to embody the spirit of the present movement for the restoration of peace on an enduring basis and the creation of a league of nations, and also to have practical facilities which its promixity to a large capital gives.

The present informal exchanges will progressively develop into the formal gathering of the inter-allied conference and that, in turn, to the peace congress, in which a number of committees will be charged with the various international subjects before the congress. And out of these successive stages it is exnected that a league of nations will be embodied as a tangible existing organization, as well as a documentary treaty.

The exchange of views on the tentative plans is permitting such mutual accommodation on fundamental points that it is expected that a public statement will be made at an early date with the authorization of the governments concerned, showing the general character of the progress made.

REDS DEFENDED BY LA FOLLETTE

be established by the soviet government, and it is not to be expected that there shall be permitted to reach the ears of the masses of the people of the world, so long as the news channels are censored, anything approaching the truth as to that government or what is taking place there today.

"So I say that if the Bolshevik government, of which we really know so little, is the sort of government that the 140,000,000 people of Russia want, that's their business and not ours, nor of any other government on earth. And under this pretext or that pretext no government should intrude itself into their affairs. The war is ended and there can be no pretext that the troops of the United States are operating in fighting Germany or fighting anybody else but the Russian people. There has been no ground presented upon which a declaration of war could be predicated. But battles are being fought. American blood is being spilt, Russians are being killed on Russian soil. Apparently, from the press, desperate fighting is going on continually."

Senator La Follette said the information given regarding the Bolshevik government by Edgar Sisson, of the committee on public information, was covered "by the slime of foxification, with fraud and forgery plainly manifest."

Claims Danger Past.

Senator Swanson, in reply, reiterated that the allies and American forces seized Archangel to prevent its becoming an important German submarine base and said that the fact that the Bolsheviki opposed the allied operations, proved that they were unfriendly.

Senator Kenyon said the danger of Archangel becoming a German submarine base is now passed and asked why the troops were not withdrawn.

"The war is not over," began Senator Swanson, but he was interrupted by Senator Thomas, of Colorado, democrat, who said enormous supplies are at Archangel and along the Murman coast which the allies must protect.

Senator Swanson said that the Bolsheviki have been responsible for most of the fighting, as they had tried to drive the allied forces from Archangel, and he added that he thought the government was right in sending troops to Russia.

Senator Kirby, of Arkansas, democrat, declared the allied troops in Russia were "hopelessly outnumbered" and that they either should be reinforced or withdrawn.

A similar opinion was expressed by Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, republican, who added:

"The people of this country are going to get information as to why our troops are in Russia, and the senate is not going to permit the burial in committee of any resolution calling for this information. The mothers of these boys are going to be heard from."

The Iowa senator said he had made repeated efforts to obtain information from the war department regarding the troops in Russia, but without success because "the cables are too congested with important matters, including 'descriptions of women's dresses,'" and in connection with the president's visit abroad.

Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, had planned to discuss the Russian situation in the senate today, but was prevented by the rush of other business, and plans to speak Thursday.

TRIES TO END LIFE BY USE OF POISON AND BY GAS FUMES

Mrs. L. D. Head, 29 years old, of 322 Little street, is at Grady hospital in a precarious condition as the result of an attempt to end her life by opening the gas jets in her room and swallowing carbolic acid last night at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Head's sister, Mrs. Clarence Coleman, who lives at the same address, told the police shortly after the attempted suicide that Mrs. Head came home apparently very blue and despondent and went into her room without saying a word, closing the door behind her.

Some time later Mrs. Head's little boy went into the room and returned with the information that his mother was very sick. An investigation revealed the mother's unconscious body and the room filled with the fumes of gas.

Mrs. Head revived a bit before she was removed to the Grady, and she told her sister that she had taken carbolic acid in addition to breathing the gas fumes. She was rushed to the Grady, where physicians stated that if she had taken carbolic acid, it was not of a sufficient quantity or strength to hurt her. She was in a serious condition, however, from breathing gas fumes.

Mrs. Head's husband is said to be a soldier now on duty in France. She volunteered no information as to the cause of the attempted suicide.

There are now about forty women working with the police force in London.
